ENEMY LOSSES IN SEA BATTLE MOUNT

ALL-OUT DRIVE AGAINST JAPAN DRAWS NEARER

Midway Victory Means Corner Has Been Turned in Battle of Pacific.

By CLARK LEE
AP War Correspondent

PEARL HARBOR, June 8—The smashing defeat imposed on Japan's navy by American air and sea power in the battle of Midway has undoubtedly brought greatly near the day when allied nations will be able to launch an all-out offensive against Japan.

The American triumph means that a corner has been turned in the second phase of the Pacific war—much sooner than many expected.

This second phase began in the Coral sea, after the fall of Java and the encirclement of the Philippines had ended the first stage—war on land.

The task of the United States then became twofold: first, to overthrow quickly what areas remained in control of the United Nations from Australia, through Hawaii, to Alaska; second, to cut down Japan's sea power to safeguard those areas from attack and at the same time prepare for the eventual offensive.

An effective though not decisive start toward this second objective was made in the battle of the Coral sea. Now the battle of Midway has seriously crippled the Japanese fleet and especially the fleet air arm.

Planes in Principal Role

Aircraft played a principal part in both the Coral sea and Midway operations, and a majority of the damage to enemy vessels was inflicted by dive bombers and torpedo planes, supported by land-based aircraft of all types.

Both battles proved the Japanese have no monopoly on tenacity and ferocity of attacks. The Midway fight was not a hit-run encounter, but on in which the Americans sought and achieved decisive results by pressing home their attacks despite opposition, surrounding losses and driving in for death blows.

Midway again showed beyond doubt that the American naval airforce is better trained, better equipped, more skillful and more daring than the Japanese fleet air arm—and the Japanese naval airforce is greatly superior to that of the Japanese army.

Our naval planes were strongly supported by army as well as marine corps aircraft.

Midway also reemphasized the dominant importance of aircraft in the Pacific war. All of Japan's early victories were won mainly through air supremacy and her only severe defeats — Macassar Strait, Coral sea and Midway—were inflicted principally by aircraft.

Fear U. S. Air Growth

Japan's attempt to drive headlong against the Hawaiian islands rather than trying to cut America's communications lines to Australia at some less vital point was

NAVY MEN CONFIDENT ADMIRAL TELLS GRADS

By The Associated Press

WILLIAMSBURG, Va., June 8—Admiral Ernest J. King told the graduating class of the College of William and Mary today that the officers and men of the navy—as representative Americans—have no lack of confidence in their ability to deal with the enemy on anywhere near equal terms.

"At the beginning of this war, for a variety of reasons," said the commander in chief of the United States fleet, "those terms were decidedly unequal and in favor of the enemy . . . we have already made some progress in overcoming those inequalities.

"Our capacity for production is well known. Our trained man power is increasing steadily under an accelerated program. A good share of our naval forces have had the necessary seasoning.

"What is more important," he added, "we believe the American man is unequalled as an intelligent and fearless fighter."

Admiral King, who received an honorary degree of doctor of laws at today's exercises closing the 284th session of the college, declared he was "confident that we shall win this war."

Work or Fight, Air Officer Tells Strikers

First Big Bus Arrives Here for Hauling Workers at War Plant; Others Coming

Transportation Arrangements Under Way As Date for Establishing Offices at Plant Site Nears.

The Marion Rapid Transit Co. today took the first step toward handling the transportation problem that will grow out of the Scioto Ordnance Plant construction and operation by bringing to Marion a huge bus that will seat 50 persons and haul approximately 100, counting standing room.

Ray Maag, president and general manager of the company, which operates the city's bus system, said another big unit will be brought here within a few days and that four more have been leased, for delivery as needed.

Although the transportation problem as yet is a matter of conjecture, he said it is possible that 25 or more of the big units will be needed to handle the war plant workers. Factors that make it impossible to gauge definitely the future needs include uncertainty about the number of private automobiles the workers will be able to operate under gasoline and tire restrictions.

Seeks Official Approval

Mr. Maag plans to go to Columbus this week to get the state utilities commission's approval for his plans to operate bus service between the downtown district and the war plant. He said he hopes to start operating the big bus June 15, making regular runs between the courthouse and the war plant. This is a three and one-half mile trip and a round trip can be made every 40 minutes, allowing time to load and unload.

June 15 was selected as the date for beginning operations because that is the tentative date set for removal of the war plant administration offices from downtown office rooms to the plant site. As a result of this move, some 400 executives of the construction companies, army personnel and office workers will have to make daily trips to the plant site. Although some are expected to use private automobiles, many are expected to rely on buses.

First Used at Fair

The Marion Rapid Transit Co. has purchased the big bus that arrived today, acquiring it from the Twin City Motor Coach Co. at Benton Harbor, Mich., which used it to haul sightseers to the House of David colony. The bus originally was used to haul sightseers at the Chicago World's Fair. It will be renovated and painted in the Marion Rapid Transit Co. colors of yellow and green. It is a tractor-trailer unit 52 feet long with single row of seats, placed back to back, down the center. Its operation will require a driver and a conductor. The sides are open, except for side curtains that ordinarily are kept rolled up, but it will be enclosed later for use in winter months.

Fare To Be 10 Cents

Mr. Maag said a 10-cent fare each way will be charged on trips to and from the plant. The operation will be kept separate from the city bus service, no transfers being permitted.

Another unit to arrive in Marion later in the week has been leased by the Marion company and will be an enclosed bus fashion from the huge automobile-transport trucks formerly used to deliver new cars. Since these units are now idle, they are being converted to big buses to haul war workers and will be operated under leases by transportation companies throughout the country. Four other similar units are under lease for delivery as needed, and more are to be brought here later as the need for them arises.

Even with the large-scale bus transportation program now being set up, it is expected that a careful study of the transportation problem will have to be made, Mr. Maag said. Out of such a study may grow an arrangement whereby groups of workers will be going to work and leaving the plant at regular intervals throughout the day and night under a split-shift plan that would keep the big buses in almost continuous operation. Such a plan would enable the transit company to provide service for a large number of workers with a minimum of equipment, he pointed out.

Liquor Curfew To Be Before Council Tonight

City council tonight is scheduled to consider again the so-called "curfew" ordinance on the sale of beer and liquor in Marion restaurants, night clubs and beer parlors. The second reading of the ordinance is set for tonight.

A three-fourths vote at tonight's second reading would permit the third and final vote tonight.

Several church groups have announced they will be represented at tonight's meeting and have prepared petitions expressing their approval of the ordinance as drawn up, providing for midnight closing of liquor sales.

Mayor Russell C. Snare said possibly another proposal to be considered is the ordinance which would establish a sewer rental fee.

A caucus in the mayor's office at 7:30 will precede the public meeting which is expected to start about 8:30.

BRITISH RADIO WARNS FRENCH

Radio Advises Them To Move from Coastal Area of Nazi Held Territory.

By The Associated Press

LONDON, June 6—The British radio broadcast instructions to the French people today to evacuate a broad coastal area from the Belgian to the Spanish border, which strip the Germans have designated as a prohibited military zone.

"Operations of capital importance," for the liberation of France will start in due time, said the broadcast.

"It has been shown on several occasions that the presence of the civilian population on the scene of active operations hinders the action of troops, and particularly of friendly troops, in a very grave manner," said the broadcast beamed across the channel in the regular French language news program.

"Danger Area"

"The coastal regions of occupied France are likely to become more and more a theater of war operations," the warning continued. "They will inevitably bring with them the gravest dangers for the civil population."

British sources, however, would not discuss the meaning of the broadcast, asserting that it would have to stand for itself without interpretation.

Frenchmen were advised to leave the coastal strip from the Belgian border to the Pyrenees—the mountain frontier with Spain—which has been marked off by the Nazis as a military zone.

Advises Early Action

The radio advised:

"Don't wait until the last moment. It would be too late. Go away at the earliest possible moment."

The notice acknowledged that the Germans would place difficulties in the way of the evacuation, but urged Frenchmen to overcome such obstacles.

Monthly Draft Calls Now Growing Heavier

By The Associated Press

COLUMBUS, O., June 8—Selective service headquarters reported today that monthly calls by Ohio's 230 draft boards were becoming "heavier" and the state was contributing its full share to the nation's fast-expanding army.

Boards now are rechecking files with particular attention to men in class 3-A, headquarters said, to classify as many as possible in 1-A.

Upon anticipated enactment of legislation to provide support for dependents of men now listed as 3-A, heavier demands are expected to be made of boards.

Capital Predicts New Tokyo Effort To Break U. S. Power

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, June 8 — Desperate new Japanese efforts to break the growing might of America's air and sea power in the Pacific were predicted in informed quarters here today as the only course left open to the enemy, now clearly in the defensive.

Subsequent to the United States victory in the battle that started with the repulse of a huge attacking force at Midway island last week, authorities said that the Japs must either initiate new operations somewhere along the sweeping defense line that runs from Alaska to Australia or else by inactivity admit their eventual complete defeat even before the grand offensive of the United Nations starts rolling in the Pacific.

Admiral Nimitz

Meanwhile the armada of battleships and aircraft carriers, cruisers and destroyers which steamed into what appears to patently had withdrawn.

Admiral Chester W. Nimitz, commander of the Pacific fleet, said in a communique from Pearl Harbor that contact with the enemy fleet was lost sometime Saturday night.

In Washington, Admiral Ernest J. King, commander in chief of the United States fleet, declared at a press conference that the battle just ending might decide the course of the war in the Pacific, depending on the extent of damage inflicted on the enemy.

Japs Use Bulk of Fleet

Without relating statistics, Admiral King said the Japanese had thrown the bulk of their sea power into the effort to take Midway, but that the army and navy had been prepared for just such an attempt. Land based aircraft "played a big part" in repelling the attack, King said. He used that fact to give a clue to how far the pursuit of the enemy would continue.

It would not be "well advised," he explained, for the American forces to rush into any territory where the Japanese could bring their land-based bombers and fighter planes into action.

The gravity of the action at Midway for the United States was emphasized by King with the assertion that Pearl Harbor, the fleet base for which Midway is the westernmost outpost, "must be held at all costs" because it is "the key to the Pacific."

King linked the Midway action with the bombing attack on Dutch Harbor, Alaska, where, he disclosed, battle maneuvers of an unspecified nature were still in progress. But he described the overall situation off Dutch Harbor as somewhat obscure.

Tracing the background of the Japanese attacks, Admiral King said that after the army bombing attack on Tokyo and other Japanese cities both he and General George C. Marshall, army chief of staff, felt that "some reprisal in kind was necessary in order that they might save face."

Coral Sea Was Start

This feeling was reinforced after the "decisive setback" to the Japanese sea forces in the battle of the Coral sea.

STRIKE AT HOTEL ENTERS THIRD DAY

Management and Union Disagree on Number of Strikers

Conflicting statements by both hotel and union officials as to the number of employes participating in the walkout strike at Hotel Harding of members of AFL local 810, Hotel and Restaurant and Bartenders union, was the only development in the strike which entered its third day at 7 a. m. today.

S. W. Gerstner, who has been named manager of the hotel to succeed Virgil Dye who is awaiting induction into the army, said today that about 15 per cent of the 70-75 employes were out on strike, while M. A. Kenny of Cincinnati, international representative of the union, said that at least 65 per cent of the force was out. Saturday, the first day of the strike, about 40 employes were reported out by the union.

Union Statement

W. J. Malone, secretary-treasurer and business representative of the union, said that a meeting of striking employes was held last night and it was definitely certain that "the 65 per cent figure was not exaggerated."

Mr. Malone said that the strikers are seeking a union shop not a closed [illegible] as stated in Saturday's edition of The Star. RAF BLASTS NAZI TARGETS

British Follow Saturday's Raid on Emden with Attacks on France and Holland.

By The Associated Press

LONDON, June 8—British warplanes attacked targets in northern France and Holland last night and damaged a German ship off the Frisian islands, the air ministry announced today, but bad weather over the continent kept the RAF from following up its Saturday night assault on Emden with another massed raid upon Germany.

A large formation of RAF fighters struck out over Northern France in a new daylight sweep early this afternoon.

All the planes which participated in the overnight operations returned safely to their bases, a communique said.

Fighter command planes which carried out the sweeps over France were reported to have bombed a railway yard near Caen and shot up a train at Montdidier, 21 miles southeast of Amiens. A lone Boston bomber also attacked the German airdrome at Leeuwarden, Holland, 70 miles from Amsterdam.

$70,936 IS MONTHLY PLEDGE FOR BONDS

6,833 Marion Co. Residents Sign for War Savings.

A total of 6,833 pledges were made in the recent Marion county war bond pledge drive, the campaign committee announced today.

The pledges are for monthly purchases totaling $70,936. The committee reported 4,997 of the pledges were in the city and 1,836 in the county.

"The committee feels this is a good percentage in the homes of employed families in the city and county," Harold J. Grigsby, president of the Kiwanis club, sponsors of the campaign, said today.

"The ladies who solicited the pledges in the city did an excellent job and we have nothing but the highest praise for them," he said. "In view of the fact that many of the families were not at home when the workers called, and that this was only a home-pledge drive, we feel the total

Star Carriers' Sales of Stamps Increases

Sale of war stamps and bonds by Marion Star carriers leaped from $9,908.50 in April to $10,600.75 last month, according to a compilation announced today by Dismas Jenkins, circulation manager.

The carriers in May sold $7,312 worth of stamps, as against $5,063 in April, and $1,897.75 worth of bonds.

The increase of $2,345 in total sales was due partly, it is believed, to the fact that there were five Saturdays during the month of May.

CONTACT LOST AS JAP SHIPS FLEE MIDWAY

Enemy Loses at Least Three Vessels Sunk with 11 Others Damaged.

By The Associated Press

PEARL HARBOR, June 8 — A once mighty Japanese naval force, reported today to constitute the bulk of that country's sea power, today limped westward in desperate retreat from Midway island, its proud units pounded by an American defense turned into a shattering offense.

"The enemy appears to be withdrawing," said Admiral Chester W. Nimitz, commander in chief of the Pacific fleet. "Contact was lost during last night."

But even should the Japanese make good their escape, it will be only at the cost of at least three warships sunk, 11 or more others damaged and the virtually complete destruction of their protecting air arm.

Against this formidable score, the only announced American losses in equipment were one destroyer sunk by a submarine, one aircraft carrier hit by a bomb and some planes missing.

Loss of the U. S. destroyer was acknowledged in the same communique in which Nimitz told of the enemy's apparent withdrawal. But it was offset by official word that a Jap destroyer also had been sent to the bottom and that additional damage had been inflicted on two enemy cruisers.

Crew Rescued

The crew of the lost U. S. destroyer, Nimitz said, was picked up by other ships "with small loss of life." The admiral was uncertain whether the reported damage to Japanese cruisers referred to further hits on vessels previously damaged or represented entirely new successes.

As the three-day battle of the central Pacific seemed to be nearing its finish in what was likely the greatest single victory of American naval history, messages of congratulation began to arrive at Nimitz' headquarters here.

"The splendid victory at Midway has aroused the greatest enthusiasm throughout this area," General Douglas MacArthur advised the admiral from Australia. "The prime minister of Australia has asked me to join his felicitations. My own pride and satisfaction are boundless. We will not fail."

Nimitz' communique announcing the Japanese retreat augmented three previous reports telling a story of mounting disaster for the enemy. It came on a day which, the admiral said, found the Hawaiian area quiet "except for minor submarine activity," in sharp contrast to the date six months before when Japan started war in the Pacific with its attack on Pearl Harbor.

Jap Carriers Sunk

Nimitz in earlier communiques reported the sinking of two and perhaps three Japanese aircraft carriers and the destruction or damage of at least 13 other enemy warships.

He said all the planes on the two definitely sunk carriers were lost and that one or two other enemy carriers were damaged with the loss of most of their planes.

Other enemy warships listed as casualties were three battleships damaged, one heavily; four cruisers damaged, two heavily; three transports damaged, and two destroyer reported sunk in last night's communique. The same announcement said it was not yet determined whether the two cruisers were in addition to cruisers reported damaged in earlier reports. Nimitz said some of the enemy warships damaged were so thoroughly battered they may not be able to reach their bases.

The civilian population in Hawaii as well as army and navy officers and men were jubilant over the news of the American success.

Admiral Isoroku Yamamoto, commander-in-chief of the Japanese navy, it was recalled, was the one who boastfully before Pearl Harbor wrote a friend:

"I am looking forward to dictating peace to the United States in the White House at Washington."

He also had boasted he would lead his fleet into San Francisco and London.

If Yamamoto lost face in the Coral sea battle, his initial Hawaiian effort to regain it proved disastrous as his warships—three not left behind on the bottom of the mid-Pacific—fled before the avengers of Pearl Harbor.

"Pearl Harbor has now been partially avenged," said Nimitz in a previous [illegible]. "Vengeance will not be complete until Japanese sea power has been reduced to impotence. We have made substantial progress in that

Public Expects War To Last Two Years, Despite Favorable News Trend

THE WORLD
MEDIUM AVERAGE OF PUBLIC'S GUESS ON LENGTH OF WAR
JAN. ..... 2.2 YEARS MORE
MAR. ..... 2.8 YEARS MORE
APR. ..... 2.4 YEARS MORE
TODAY .... 2.0 YEARS MORE

How long do you think the war will last? The latest Gallup Poll shows that President Roosevelt's fears that the country will get either too optimistic or too depressed by war news are largely groundless. The public still thinks today, the way it did in April, that the war will last at least two years more.

In a recent press conference the President warned the country against growing either too confident or too depressed over war news. The American Institute of Public Opinion, through its polls, has kept an index of public optimism. The latest results are given in the following article.

By GEORGE GALLUP
Director, American Institute of Public Opinion

PRINCETON, N. J., June 8—President Roosevelt's warning against swings of optimism and pessimism about the war should be directed more at government officials than at the public.

While officials have been blown hot and cold, the public's attitude has been fairly stable.

A good barometer of optimism is the public's belief in how long the war will last. Favorable war news and Washington comment on it have had their effect on public opinion in recent weeks, but the change has been of small proportion.

In early April an average of the guesses of Americans on the length of war was 2.4 years more. The average of their guesses today, nearly two months later, is 2.0 years.

While much talk has been heard about bombing Germany into submission this year, only one person in every twelve (8 per cent), on the average, thinks a German defeat is likely within less than a year.

Such are the facts revealed in the latest survey by the Institute on the subject of the length of the war—a survey begun during the week that President Roosevelt issued his warning against too much optimism or pessimism. The results, when compared to studies made earlier this year, show a remarkable stability in the public's attitude.

The question asked in all these surveys was as follows:

"About how much longer do you think the war will last?"

The results, in terms of the median average of all estimates follow:

Average of Public's Guess On Length of War

Jan.	2.2 years more
March (after Singapore)	2.8 years more
April	2.4 years more
Today	2.0 years more

The detailed results of the latest study are as follows:

Today's Guess by Years

Less than 2 years ...	35%
2 years	26
3 years	14
More than 3 years	15
Other or no answer ..	10

One person in every 12 (8 per cent) thinks the war will last another five years or more, and one per cent believe it will continue for ten years.

Significance of Vote

No one, not even military experts, can know when the war will end. The best that anyone can do is guess. But even if the public's estimates are only guesses, they have a definite significance.

For example, the people who think the war will last another three years take a different attitude on such war measures as tire rationing or war taxation from those who think the fighting is going to be over in six months or a year.

The amount of education a man has had does not appear to make any great difference in his guess about the length of the war. Those with a college education are neither less optimistic nor more optimistic, the poll found, than those with only a high school or grammar school education. Among all of them the medium average estimate in the poll was approximately two years.

British View

In Britain, where the last poll on the subject was conducted by Public Opinion in January, the expectations also were that the war would last two years or more.

Lately, however, there has been evidence of growing optimism. A recent British poll found that as many as 52 per cent believe it is possible for the United Nations to defeat Germany this year.

Three Girls From County at NYA Training Center

Patricia Dunn of LaRue and Rebecca Clayton and Betty Jane Witmer of Caledonia were accepted last week for training at the Charles Mill Resident center in Mansfield. Miss Dunn for clerical work and the others for machine shop work, according to an announcement from Mrs. Blythe P. Crowl of Columbus, youth counselor for the National Youth Administration in Ohio.

Under the new streamlined NYA program, 19 local shops and five resident centers over the state are training young people between the ages of 17 to 25 to make their contribution to the war effort. During the first three months of 1942 more than 2,000 NYA youths in Ohio were hired by employers engaged in war industry.

Both young men and young women are enrolled in the shops where counselors and shop foremen help them to choose work experience in the fields of airplane mechanic, power sewing machine and office work.

UNFAIR TO LOVE

CHAPTER TWENTY-THREE

Just Thank You

KATHLEEN made herself relax. She made herself smile. But she began to experience a hard-to-explain sense of uneasiness—even fear. She didn't want to have Paul kiss her again, nor did she want to kiss him. All she wanted now was a chance to prove to Joe and Uncle Frank that she had real ability.

Yet she had sense enough to know that she was more or less committed to Paul, that she would have to accept his romantic attentions from now on, anyway until she had rehearsed and played the part she had been wanting so long.

"Say something, loveliness," Paul said.

"What shall I say, Paul? Unless it's just the two words 'thank you'."

Paul leaned forward and caressed her cheek. "How wonderful life would be," he said, "if we could just go on like this—drifting in the moonlight."

Again words failed Kathleen. The only thing she could possibly say was that she thought drifting in the moonlight forever would be decidedly dull. But saying such a thing would never do. Not when Paul Pennell was in such a romantic mood—and was, so to speak, holding her future in the very palm of his hand.

The next day Lizzie served what Paul chose to call "buncheon."

"What's that?" Lizzie asked, eyeing him suspiciously.

"A combination breakfast and luncheon, my dear Ethiopian maiden," smiled Paul.

"Effen you-all had got up earlier," Lizzie said, not caring whether she offended the man or not, "we'd have had lurch separate."

"That will do, Lizzie," said Kathleen.

Lizzie went out, slowing up as she passed Joe, and giving him a look that was full of pleading.

Coffee—eggs—country sausages—hot biscuits—homemade preserves.

"And me thinking I'd never want another bite to eat," said Daisy, accepting a second helping of sausages.

"It's the country air, my child," said Uncle Frank.

"Don't you eat too much, Kathleen," Paul said. "Now that you're to join our company, you mustn't lose your slimness."

"Is it all settled?" asked Joe.

"All settled," said Paul.

"Of course," said Ruby. "Run get the script of your play, Joe. I'd better start reading before Daisy and Paul come to blows." Then when Joe had gone into the house, she spoke to Kathleen. "Don't forget you're to read aloud the part Paul's going to give you."

"I haven't forgotten," said Kathleen, "only—well, Paul said he'd rather I wouldn't."

"Why not, for Pete's sake?" said Daisy.

"I'll answer that," said Paul. "Kathleen's a find of mine, and I don't want her reading the part until I've heard her do it, and—"

"You mean you've promised her the part without first hearing her read it?" said Uncle Frank.

"Yes," said Paul. "I'm trusting my instinct. I've been with Kathleen enough to realize she's just the type the play requires for that part."

"Then why not let us share your discovery?" said Ruby.

"You can share it when rehearsal starts," said Paul. "I want to direct her in it, and then—"

"I thought I was the director," Fred cut in.

"Very well. I mean I want to coach her in it," said Paul.

Joe returned with the manuscript of his own play, and handed it to Ruby.

"It's beautifully typed, Joe," said Ruby. "If it's half as good as the typing it's a masterpiece." She looked around at the others. "All right, you folks, get settled. I don't want any interruptions."

"Yes, teacher," said Daisy. "Maybe you missed your calling, Ruby." "Maybe I did," said Ruby. "Anyway, it would be nice to be a school teacher for awhile—just long enough to chastise some of my particularly offensive pupils."

"Meaning me?" said Daisy.

"If the cap fits—wear it," Ruby retorted.

"Go on with the reading," said Fred. "Before you and Daisy come to blows!"

Ruby opened the manuscript, and began to read.

It was a light play—almost too light, Uncle Frank began to think—and it concerned people like those in Linville, the leading character being a lovely girl who "gets religion" at a tabernacle revival. In the play, Joe had tried to show how the girl had been moved by emotionalism rather than real sincerity, and how, as a result, she found herself badly confused. She kept trying to improve on the lives of others, while not understanding just what was wrong with her own. Yet, out of the chaos, she emerged a much better person, with a clearer understanding of people as a whole.

Ruby turned the last page. "Curtain!" she said, finally.

Paul's Letter

For a moment no one spoke. They just sat in complete silence. Kathleen thought it was like when the curtain falls on a play that has been so moving that the audience, spellbound, forgets to applaud.

"Well," said Fred DeMille, "do you think you could do it, Ruby?"

"Yes," said Ruby. "I think I could."

"Lots of rewriting needed, though," said Paul.

"Naturally," said Ruby. She looked at Joe, and smiled. "But Kaufman and Ferber have to do that ..."

Joe studied her fame. "Thanks a lot for reading it, Ruby," he said aptly. "It's pretty bad in places, I know—a lot of cliches and dull stretches where I tried to bridge over between more important scenes."

"Don't let that bother you, Joe," Ruby said.

"No," said Uncle Frank. "I heard somewhere that plays are not written, but rewritten."

Ruby patted the manuscript. "I'm going to hold on to it for a while, Joe," she said. "It needs a lot of thought. Later we'll discuss it in private."

"I thought it sounded pretty good—in spots," said Daisy. "Only I think the character 'Dolly' ought to be built up. There's too much of the lead, and not enough of 'Dolly'."

"Meaning, of course," said Paul, "that you want to play 'Dolly'."

"I visualized myself in the role, yes," said Daisy. She moved even closer to Joe. "And I've got some ideas about the part. I'm going to talk over with Joe—in private."

Fred shrugged. "Well," he said, "with Ruby working on the part you want—and both of you working on Joe, something ought to materialize."

"I thought it was adorable!" said Mrs. Buxton. "It would be wonderful, Ruby, if you got the play produced on Broadway."

"Yes," said Paul. "All you Linville people could charter a train and come up for the opening—like when Marion Talley made her debut at the Met."

"Let's talk about something else," said Joe.

Paul looked at his watch. "You'll have to excuse me now," he said. "I must run into town."

LETTERS FROM OUR READERS

STRENGTH IN NUMBERS

Editor of The Star: The object of the writer will be to show that the creation of a second war front in Europe is contrary to sound military policy.

If you want to study the art of war the best thing that you can do is to study the battles of Napoleon. Another good general to study is Stonewall Jackson.

The high spot of a study of these two masters of the art of war is that numbers count and that an army should not be divided. There is no such thing in war as pro rata. Everything is all or none.

An army of 1,000,000 men could probably beat three or four armies of 500,000 or 600,000 men provided it would be allowed to attack one of them at a time. If on the other hand those three or four smaller armies were united and commanded by a competent general, they could overwhelmingly beat the larger army. History proves this point beyond a doubt.

Instead of creating a second front in Europe, we should use our armies to reinforce the Russian armies. If 4,000,000 American and British soldiers were added to the Russian armies, the combined Anglo-American and Russian armies would be strong enough to break the deadlock on that front.

If we try to create a new front in Europe, we must be able to assemble an army strong enough to beat anything that Hitler can bring against it and we must have sufficient shipping facilities to transport such an army to the scene of operations before Hitler can assemble an army there strong enough to beat it. An attempt to create another front in Europe might turn out to be another instance where "The man who gets there with the mostest men first wins." (General Nathan B. Forrest.)

If on the other hand we should reenforce the Russian armies, it will not be necessary that an army large enough to hold Hitler at bay should be transported as quickly as possible. Such an reenforcement of the Russian armies could be extended over a considerable time and would use fewer ships.

The only advantage that the creation of another front in Europe would have over the reenforcement of the Russian armies is that in former case it would be necessary to transport our soldiers across only the English channel, which is about 30 miles, instead of around Murmance, which isabout 1,600 miles. In the war between United States and Germany in 1917-1918 our soldiers were disembarked at Brest, which was several hundred miles from the battle front.

It would apparently seem that there has been no war in over 200 years in which one side or the other did not commit the blunder of dividing its army. In the World war Winston Churchill sent an army to capture the Dardanelles, which was contrary to the idea that an army should not be divided. This army was held up by an inferior force and compelled to abandon its object.

Fruits greens, eggs and other foods quite abundant right now and moderate in price, are fortified with vitamins and plenty of other properties just right to bring winter jaded appetites up to summer standards.

So start a nutrition drive in your kitchen. Pay extra attention to planning, preparing and serving appetizing menus. Make mealtimes happy occasions, and soon the whole family will come out better fit to carry on their many strenuous tasks.

Fish Somerset: Combine 2 cups of regular vegetable white sauce with a cup of cooked fish (crab, white fish or salmon), ½ cup soft bread crumbs, 2 eggs or 4 yolks, 1/3 cup diced celery and 1 tablespoon each of pimiento and parsley. Pour into buttered baking dish. Stripe top with 4 pieces bacon and bake 20 minutes in moderate oven.

Mushrooms Dorsel: Lightly scrub a pound fresh mushrooms with soft brush. Drain and add 2 tablespoons each onions, celery and green peppers and simmer 5 minutes in ¼ cup fat (bacon suggested). Add 2 cups tomatoes and simmer 15 minutes. Pour in 2 cups boiled rice, ¼ teaspoon salt and ¼ teaspoon each paprika and white pepper.

Ham-Stuffed Eggs: Cut 8 hard-cooked eggs in halves. Remove and mash the yolks with fork. Add 2/3 cup chopped cooked ham, ¼ teaspoon each, salt, paprika and celery salt, 1 teaspoon minced onions and a little parsley. Roughly refill the egg whites and set them upright in a buttered, shallow pan or dish. Add a cup each of canned (or homemade) cream of mushroom and cream of asparagus soup. Sprinkle with ½ cup grated cheese and bake 20 minutes in a moderate oven.

Spinach Ring: Simmer for 3 minutes, 3 tablespoons each chopped onions, green peppers and celery in 4 tablespoons bacon, olive oil or other fat. Add 4 cups chopped cooked spinach, 1/3 teaspoon salt, ¼ teaspoon pepper, 2 tablespoons lemon juice, 2 tablespoons butter melted and ½ cup soft bread crumbs. Press lightly into a buttered ring mold. Bake 20 minutes in moderate oven. Unmold and fill with creamed mushrooms and slivered almonds or asparagus sauce blended with chopped pimientos or frizzled dried beef in savory sauce.

Vegetable Medley: Mix together 1 cup each cooked asparagus, peas, grated carrots and cress. Add 1 tablespoon each of chopped onions, sweet pickles and olives. Mix in ½ cup sliced radishes and 1/3 cup diced celery. Moisten with a little tart French dressing and let ripen, for several hours in bowl rubbed with cut garlic, in a cold place. Mix well and serve in bowl lined with more cress. Pass Roquefort Cheese Dressing. This salad with a hot dish, quick bread and fruit dessert gives a splendid build-up meal.

Marion and Mt. Victory Youths Take Navy Oath in Nationwide Program

Induction Ceremony Broadcast Exactly Six Months After Jap Attack on Pearl Harbor.

Three youths, two from Marion and one from Mt. Victory, sworn into the United States navy yesterday afternoon in Marion's participation in the nationwide "Avengers of Pearl Harbor" ceremonies, left at noon today for Cincinnati, from where they will be "shipped out" immediately to the Great Lakes Training Station at Great Lakes, Ill., to begin their training.

They are Robert Noel Ruth, 20, of 195 Curtis court, enlisted for six years in the regular navy, and George Wesley Bosh, 19, of 520 Toledo avenue, and Willis Sherman Moe, 18, of Mt. Victory, both enlisted for two years in the naval reserves.

At 2:25 on the dot, six months to the minute from the time the first Jap bomb fell on Pearl Harbor, they were given the solemn oath of allegiance by Lieutenant M. A. Fremming, United States Naval Reserves, from Cincinnati.

The ceremony was conducted at Station WMRN in the presence of families and friends of the recruits and interested citizens. Some heard the program in the lobby. The total attendance was estimated at 60.

Nationwide Project

Similar ceremonies were conducted in 500 other cities throughout the country. An estimated 10,000 recruits took the oath of allegiance. It was the first mass swearing-in by radio.

The American flag and the Union Jack, the blue banner with 48 white stars which floats on the forward end of ships of the United States navy, were in the studio.

Mayor Russell C. Snare, a member of Bird-McGinnis Post No. 162, in a brief talk said that the attack on Pearl Harbor crushed "America's dream world" and that much more has happened since then than the average American anticipated. He said people have a better understanding now of the problems faced in the vast distances of the Pacific and that they no longer expect miracles."

"We are learning," he said, "that it is not a job that can be done by men in uniform alone. Everyone must do his part."

Recruiting Officer Talks

Chief Petty Officer Silber, recruiting officer at the Marion station in the post office, explained the classes in which men may enlist and said that the number of persons present was a "slap-the-Axis" turnout.

A. L. Watt, paymaster of the national Navy club organization, greeted the recruits as an alumnus of "the greatest school in the world and the greatest fighting force in the world."

"Today," he told the recruits, "you are starting on another game, much more serious than a football game, a basketball game, or any other game of your school days. However, you have the enthusiasm and after you're in the service when that old alma mater song, "Anchors Aweigh" is played your chest will push out a couple more inches."

In closing he admonished the recruits to leave no doubt in the minds of the people as to which branch of the armed services "wins this war."

Take Oath

The recruits stood with raised right arms as Lieutenant Fremming gave them the oath of allegiance. Afterward he congratulated them as full-fledged members of the United States navy. Applause greeted his congratulatory expression. The program closed with playing of the national anthem. Band recordings were played at intervals in the program.

In the opening moments of the program the three recruits were brought to the microphone and introduced to the audience and to those listening to the program. Bosh said he hoped to enter civil engineering and Ruth said he wanted to learn a trade.

Three pounds Porgies, split, to about ⅝ inch thick, 1 cup yellow cornmeal and flour, equal parts, 4 teaspoons salt, 4 tablespoons shortening.

Heat shortening over low heat in a heavy utensil. Cut fish to service portions. Sift together the cornmeal, flour and salt. Dip fish in water or milk and cover well with dry ingredients. When shortening is thoroughly heated, place fish in the pan and cook 3 minutes. Then cover the pan tightly and remove from fire, allowing fish to cook in its own steam about 2 minutes. Remove cover, turn fish, return pan to heat and cook 3 minutes longer. (Allow ½ pound fish per serving.) Any fish suited to frying can be cooked by this method. Fish less than ⅝ inch thick will require a short cooking time; allow longer for thicker fish.

Rosy Grapefruit Juice

One cup fresh raspberries, 2½ cups unsweetened grapefruit juice, 4 tablespoons sugar, or syrup or honey to taste.

Mash the berries with the sugar; press through strainer. Combine the raspberry mixture with the grapefruit juice that has been chilled in advance. Serve in glasses half-filled with cracked ice. This serves 4; delicious starter for luncheon.

Substitute: Replace berries and sugar with ¾ cup loganberry juice.

Baked Lamb Patties

1 pound ground lamb (from neck), 1 cup fresh bread, crumbed, 1 egg slightly beaten, seasonings to taste, ½ cup stock or broth from 1 bouillon cube.

Mix the meat with crumbs, egg and seasonings. For seasonings, allow 1 teaspoon salt, ⅛ teaspoon pepper, a fleck of thyme and 2 teaspoons minced parsley; 1 teaspoon lemon juice adds zest. Shape the mixture in small patties and place in glass casserole. Pour the warm broth or stock over patties; celery or parsley leaves may be added. Bake 1 hour in a moderate oven 350 degrees F., basting occasionally. Baking may be speeded by covering for the first period. Serves 4.

Sauce for Cooked Vegetables

Fresh asparagus, broccoli and boiled cabbage should be enlivened occasionally by a cheese sauce. Try this:

One tablespoon butter, 1½ cups finely diced American cheese, ¼ teaspoon salt, 1 teaspoon worcestershire sauce, 1 teaspoon prepared mustard, ¾ cup evaporated milk.

Melt butter and cheese in top of double boiler over hot water; keep heat fairly low. Add salt, sauce and mustard. Blend thoroughly before stirring in milk. Heat to boiling point and remove quickly. Yields 2½ cups sauce.

Sacrifice To Self-Interest

IT IS fine news that May sales of War Savings Stamps and Bonds in Ohio exceeded the state's $31,768,700 quota—fine financially and even better psychologically. The voluntary sales plan has proved its worth.

Its potentialities have only been tapped, moreover. There have been no whirlwind selling drives like those that put over the Liberty Loan drives. While everybody certainly knows by this time that War Savings Stamps and Bonds are on sale, millions never have been confronted with a direct challenge to do something about it. There is vastly more customer acceptance than the sales organizations have turned to account.

What it amounts to is that the ceiling of possibilities for raising money by asking citizens to make a sacrifice of their present purchasing power to their future self-interest scarcely has been approached. There is no reason why Ohio's June quota of $12,722,500 should not be reached—no reason why future quotas shouldn't be reached. Ultimately, perhaps the possibilities of voluntary purchases would be exhausted, and when that happened compulsion would have to be substituted. The government must raise more money than it expects to be able to raise—and that is the whole story of war financing in a nutshell. The sky is the limit on spending, and the sky is the limit on financing.

And Also the Spilt Milkers

WALTER LIPPMANN'S timely tip to the "Gawdsakers" to shut up should be shared with the "spilt milkers." Most of them are wringing their hands over the rubber situation.

Some, as spokesmen for the government, are trying to make it appear that the United States was caught short on rubber because a private concern didn't look ahead and prepare for the evil day. This is, of course, an absurd position, in view of the fact that the government itself was even more shortsighted than the private concern about the possibility of a Japanese thrust into the rubber-producing area.

But there is nothing to be gained by complaining about the government, either. That can't undo the very great damage that has been done. The nation's transportation system, depending heavily on rubber tires, is threatened with collapse inside a year unless tires are conserved drastically. The ability of the United States to swing its proper share of weight in the war is at stake. There is no further room for bungling or blabbermouthing.

Nothing any officeholder, politician or citizen can say will restore the rubber supply. Nothing is of the slightest consequence but action. Tens of thousands of soldiers, sailors and aviators are winging into action in the Far East to do something about rubber. If tens of millions of citizens back home would shut up and do likewise, a disaster could be averted.

Putting It Off Till Peace

THOUGH chief emphasis is being laid on getting things done now—no more too little and too late—there is a corresponding tendency in the secondary level of affairs to put things off till peace. It probably is wisest to face frankly the consequences of giving procrastinators a handier excuse than usual.

During the late depression they were confined strictly to financial excuses; they could not fix the roof because they didn't know where to get the money; they couldn't read the books they always had promised themselves to read because they couldn't afford to buy them or rent them, they couldn't afford to take up the hobby that struck their fancy, they couldn't eliminate the accumulated mistakes in their wardrobes because replacements would cost too much.

But now they are doubly fortified. Cost still is a prime consideration, but it can be backed up with priorities, War Savings, anti-inflationary measures and patriotism in general. The proposition when the procrastinators get through with it is ironclad. Nothing possibly can be done about anything till peace. If that sometimes seems an evasion of the issue and an easy out for putting off, "C'est la guerre."

The cumulative effect of overworking so many irrefutable reasons for not doing things that could be done, as well as things that couldn't or shouldn't be done, promises to be tremendous. Plainly, the instant the war is over, millions of promises will fall due. Dentists will work 24 hours a day making delayed fillings. The mails will be flooded with postponed correspondence. Wives will be showered with ex post facto anniversary gifts. Children will have more trinkets than they'll know what to do with—unless, of course, the putter-offers immediately find another excuse as good as the war. Depend on it; they will.

News Behind the News

Russia Known To Be Asking for Certain Territorial Gains After the War.

By PAUL MALLON

WASHINGTON, June 8—Russia's [illegible] for a post-war [illegible] on areas [illegible] of a buffer on account of [illegible] of Soviet leaders [illegible] to be a defense.

Yesterday the [illegible] imparted [illegible] dispatches from Moscow, [illegible] the June 3 of the New York Times claiming Red right to the Karelian Isthmus, [illegible] little Baltic state of Lithuania, Latvia and Estonia, the part of Poland [illegible] occupied called White Russia, and the Bessarabian [illegible] and Moldavian regions of Rumania.

The request for an understanding on this is reported on competent authority to have become known diplomatically to London and to Washington.

Obviously, even such a [illegible] surrounding and restricted demand cannot be granted without corrupting the aims of war for the United States and Great Britain are conducting the war or in fact our own form of government.

Secret promises [illegible] amount to secret treaties, and the President is not empowered to make secret treaties. Our form of government requires treaties to be ratified and proclaimed by the senate. If any official of this government made a promise, it could not be binding, and therefore, would be worthless.

But even if this were not the case, neither London nor Washington officials would consider it a wise policy to start handing out personal promises to work after the war for secret territorial acquisitions for friends. If the first reasonable request is granted a dangerous and embarrassing course would be opened up.

Whatever diplomatic representations were made by Russia can definitely be assumed to have been rejected.

Gas War Unlikely

It is not thought likely that poison gas will ever be used in this war, except in such limited circumstances as already reported in China and on the Russian front.

It would just not be worth while from a military standpoint for anyone to use gas bombs against cities like Washington, London, Tokyo or Berlin. To create any effect, a tremendous amount of gas would be required. Hundreds of planes would be necessary for any important raid.

No military advantages would accrue because civilians alone would suffer. Why carry gas against civilians when the same number of planes can inflict real military damage with incendiaries and explosives?

Use of gas against seaside military objectives like Midway, Pearl Harbor, Dutch Harbor, etc., is even more improbable. Constant sea breezes would keep it from being effective.

Gas is a woefully ineffective weapon in a war of movement which this has turned out to be in Europe and the far east. It was useful in the first World war, because then fighting was limited to trenches and positions were stabilized.

About the only real use for it now (aside from possible attempts at terrorization) is at points where the enemy must [illegible] or advance through narrow places, especially low marshy ground. A retreating force especially, under these conditions, could effectively use gas to delay an enemy advance.

Used in China

The Japs need not deny that they have used gas on 70 or more occasions in their war in China. A place where they relied heavily on this hated weapon was at Ichang at the head of the Yangtze river.

The Japs had taken that town and the Chinese were counter-attacking. The Japs stopped the counter-attack by laying down a gas barrage.

Again, in recent weeks, the Japs used gas around Kinhwa. The Chinese held the city for seven days against Jap attacks until heavy barrages of gas shells were fired into the town.

On most of the other occasions the use was limited and in some, experimental.

Few New Gases

It is strange, but true, to learn now, after all we anticipated about prospective gas terrorization in this war, that few advances in its demoniacal efficiency have been made by any nation since the last war. The improvements are nothing like those in the use of aviation, tanks and artillery. Chlorine and mustard types of the World war are still the main ones.

The stuff we heard about the Germans having a nerve gas which temporarily froze their adversaries on the Belgian and Dutch border was just that—stuff. Both in Russia and in Japan, the enemy has used gas mostly in mortar shells at a range of 300 or 400 yards. Occasionally a withdrawing force has left gas mines behind.

If anyone starts anything we are well supplied for that method of warfare. Gas can be produced easily and in great quantities. The shells are easily made.

Mr. Roosevelt's warning therefore will no doubt be effective.

Winning Arctic Battle

Eye-Witnesses Tells How Supplies Reach Russia.

AN EASTERN BRITISH PORT June 8—(By Cable to British Press Service)—One of the most graphic pictures of the Battle of the Arctic is told today by eye-witnesses just returned in a large convoy that took war supplies to Russia and has come back to England.

"In Arctic darkness our convoy sailed to Murmansk last winter. We faced blizzards and mind-numbing cold, fought Nazi dive-bombers, U-boats and warships which lay in wait for us in Norwegian fiords. But we delivered the goods," said one merchant skipper.

"It is the Battle of the Atlantic which makes it possible for American help to reach our island, and it is the Battle of the Arctic that now obtains for Russia the continuous material help from Britain and the U.S.A., which is like a fist being thrust into the German side."

Battle Against Weather

Neither the bitter cold nor the intense German attacks on these Arctic convoys has conquered the spirit of these merchant mariners or their naval escorts. The bitterness of the battle can be imagined from the reports of men like the commander of the minesweeper Sumba, who said as he prepared to step ashore for the first time in months that: "Our worst enemy is the weather."

"With ice three or four feet deep on the decks, the cold was so intense on the Arctic front that as the spray broke over bows it seemed to freeze in mid-air. For three days at one stretch we were in danger of becoming top-heavy because of the thick layer of ice.

"The steam hose could do nothing to melt the ice and the only way to get rid of it was with a pick axe. All hands got to work to hack it away with the axes and in an hour we had cleared 40 tons.

"Our submarine escort looked like a ghost ship cruising in continual darkness," he continued. "Even a short time on the surface was enough to cover the bridge with so much ice that they almost became top heavy. One man had to rub pure glycerine on the conning tower eyepiece every few minutes so that it could be slammed at any instant if a crash dive was necessary.

Russian Whiskers Covered

"Helmets froze to the heads of our men and because of this intense cold one could not find a single Russian beard—or even a moustache when we arrived at our destination — they were all covered with icicles.

"The Germans have also reinforced their supply lines along the Norwegian coast in their efforts to cut this important trans-Arctic supply line. Apart from warships, Nazi bombers and dive bombers are now being used in greater numbers. The long Arctic summer which lit up our convoy continually on our return trip, has greatly aided them.

"Despite this strong enemy force and the heavy weather, our ships have kept sailing, however. We carried war materials of all kinds — guns, trucks, and other vehicles, wheat, sugar, medical supplies. We carry anything and everything which Russia needs that we have in Britain or can get from the U.S.A. With determination and good cheer our ships are fighting successfully the Battle of the Arctic."

This Week in the Sky

ON TUESDAY a thin crescent moon will be seen hanging above the eastern horizon as the light of dawn begins to flood the sky. It will disappear toward the close of the week, however as the moon approaches the sun to attain the new phase at 5:02 p. m. (E.W.T.) on Saturday, the 13th. Early risers on Wednesday, the 10th, will see the moon near the planet Venus in the eastern sky. They will be in conjunction at 1:28 a. m. on that date. Venus now rises about two hours before the sun and shines as a beautiful object in the dawn.

The new moon is lost to view except during those infrequent times when it crosses the sun and we have a solar eclipse. What is popularly called "new moon" is really a young crescent moon that is two or three days past the new phase. This will be visible early next week.

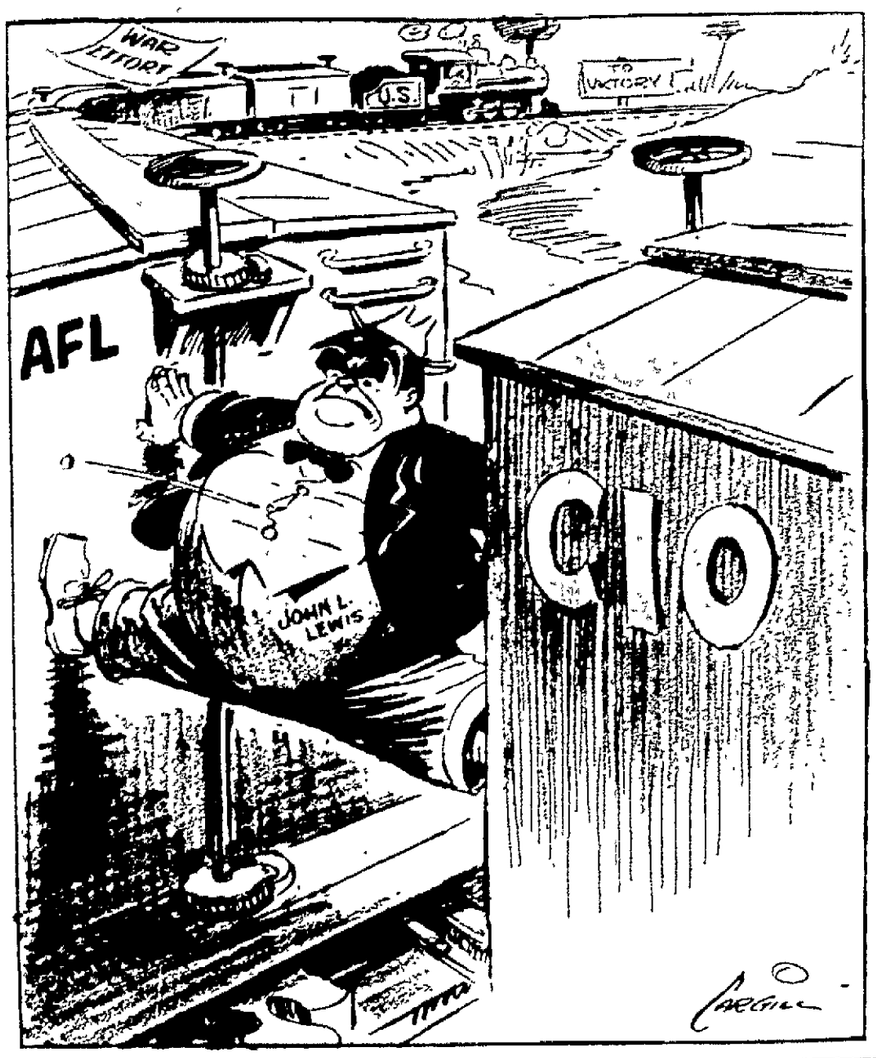
LOOK OUT FOR THE CARS



Strategic Importance of the Aleutians

Dutch Harbor Attack May Mean Russo-Japanese War.

AMONG the several theories about Japan's reasons for attacking Dutch harbor, United States base in the Aleutian islands, is a guess that a Russo-Japanese war is about to break out. If that were to happen, the Aleutians might become the jumping-off place for United States forces aiding Russia. For instance, American planes could be moved from Alaska by way of the Aleutians to Russia's bases at Petropavlovsk and Vladivostok.

This theory fits in with speculation that Germany may have been working shrewdly on Japan's justifiable fear of Russia to persuade the strategists of the "rising sun" to open a second front by attacking the Soviet Union in Siberia. In the opinion of many observers, Japan must prepare to fight in Siberia regardless of whether Russia or Germany wins; it would have as much to fear from the Germans if they controlled the jumping-off place for raids on Japanese cities as it has to fear from the Russians.

The Aleutian islands are vitally important to the United States, regardless of the way the war turns out for other countries. The late Gen. William Mitchell, whose views lately have been hitting a high average for foresight, told a congressional committee in 1935:

"Alaska is the most central place in the world of aircraft, and that is true either of Europe, Asia, or North America, for in the future I think whoever holds Alaska will hold the world, and I think it is the most important strategic place in the world."

THE Aleutian islands, of course, are an integral part of Alaska's military importance. As Gen. Mitchell foresaw in a magazine article in 1934, "an air offensive against Japan from Alaska could be decisive. They know this full well and they know that we are preparing for it in no way whatever."

Since then, as is well known, the United States has been preparing, and in its preparations the Aleutians have been important. "Air power," said Gen. Mitchell, "ultimately will decide the contest between east and west." The Japanese cannot afford to let the United States control the shortest distance to their islands without trying to resist.

Conversely, Alaska and the Aleutians are indispensable to the protection of the United States. In Japan's control, they would be a pistol pointed at both the United States and Canada. Preparation of bases in the islands and in Alaska itself was begun during the era of defensive thinking, though Japan would be making a proper deduction, no doubt, if it assumed that the bases now are intended for offensive action.

Governor Gruening of Alaska has been quoted as asserting that "Alaska has the greatest potential possibilities for launching an offensive of any land under the American flag." While the Aleutian islands are close enough to Japan to permit occasional long-range bombing raids on Japanese bases and cities, the difficult weather conditions prevailing there limit their usefulness for sustained action.

The islands provide, however, stepping stones to Russian Kamchatka and Siberia. It is obviously in this connection that the greatest potentialities for a northern offensive against Japan exist. With Russia as an ally of the United States in the war on Japan, planes and troops could reach the Soviet by way of the new motor road being built to Alaska.

IF RUSSIA should come into the war against Japan, the conflict would not be confined to air and sea combat. Hostilities between land forces would break out at once on the frontier between Manchukuo and Russia. The author of a recent magazine article said: "We cannot expect Russia to lend-lease us its bases on the coast of eastern Siberia for grand air attacks while its armies, caught in a double war, would bear alone the assault of Japan's land army. An A. E. F. large enough to tip the scales of destiny should be conveyed to Siberia, there to effect at last a junction, in body and soul, with the armies of Russia."

In a Russo-Japanese conflict, each side would try desperately to win the first round. It is assumed that Japan would try to blast the Trans-Siberian railroad and Vladivostok. The Russians, if this happened, would be out on a limb. Consequently, they would try to bomb Japanese nerve centers, supply depots and transports serving the Manchurian army and pray for the United States to pitch into the battle with no delay—using Alaska and the Aleutian islands to the best possible advantage.

"Speaking of shortages, Battersby, will you step over here a minute?"

ASKS FUND OF 39 BILLIONS

President Makes Request for More Money for War Department.

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, June 8—President Roosevelt asked congress today for a new appropriation of $39,000,000,000 for the war department for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1943.

In his request, made in a message to Speaker Rayburn, a boost to more than $100,000,000,000 the war chest appropriated by congress for the three years ending June 30, 1943.

The new appropriations and authorizations for the armed services, estimated by appropriations committee attaches at approximately $165,000,000,000.

Explaining the President asked $59,091,747 for the war department's regular activities for the coming fiscal year, with the understanding the amount would be increased.

"Because of the change in conditions which have since come about," he said in his letter of transmittal today, estimates fall far short of meeting the estimated needs of the military establishment for the year and their complete revision has become necessary."

The largest single item in the total was $11,043,000,000 for the army air corps, but there was no immediate explanation of the manner in which the fund would be spent.

Returns To Hardin Co. from Hawaiian Islands

KENTON, O., June 8 — Mrs. Paul Summers of Ada still appreciates the novelty of being able to sit in front of a lighted window with the shade up, she told friends this week after her arrival home by plane from Hawaii where she, her husband and their two children lived about 10 miles from Pearl Harbor.

Every home has a "victory" garden at its rear although there is no lack of necessary food; liquor and gasoline are rationed at the rate of one quart of liquor and 10 gallons of gasoline per family each month; butter is seldom available, and apples and oranges can not be bought for any price, Mrs. Summers said. RULES PEDDLER ACT APPLIES TO SECT

Supreme Court Gives Decision in Jehovah Witness Case.

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, June 8—The supreme court ruled today that a municipal ordinance requiring a license for peddlers may constitutionally be applied to a member of "Jehovah's Witnesses" engaged in distributing literature for which contributions were solicited.

Such a requirement was challenged on the ground that it violated the right of freedom of press and of freedom of worship "Almighty God."

Justice Reed delivered the 5 to 4 decision applying to ordinances passed by Fort Smith, Ark.; Casa Grande, Ari., and Opelika, Ala.

Justice Reed asserted that "any religious or didactic group" may be subjected "to a reasonable fee for their money-making activities" if "that money is earned by the sale of articles."

"A book agent," he added, "cannot escape a license requirement by a plea that it is a tax on knowledge. It would hardly be contended that the publication of newspapers is not subject to the usual governmental fiscal exactions."

OVERTIME PAY RULINGS GIVEN

Supreme Court Hands Down Decisions in Two Wage-Hour Law Cases.

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, June 8—In a decision affecting several million "white collar" workers, the supreme court upheld today the government's contention that additional compensation for overtime must, in the absence of a contract for specific hourly wage, be paid employes even though they received a fixed weekly salary above the amount required by the wage-hour law.

Two decisions were delivered by the court on this question. In one, delivered by Justice Reed, the tribunal asserted that the wage-hour act "was designed to require payment for overtime at time and a half the regular pay where that pay is above the minimum, as well as where the regular pay is at the minimum."

This 8 to 1 decision applied to the Overnight Motor Transportation Company, Inc., of Baltimore, on a suit for extra compensation brought by a former employe.

In a 5 to 4 decision, delivered by Justice Byrnes, the tribunal held that the A. H. Belo Corp., publisher of the Dallas (Tex.) Morning News and owner of radio station WFAA, was within its rights in basing overtime compensation on an hourly wage (fixed by contract).

Says Cases Differ

Justice Reed explained in his decision that the Overnight Motor Transportation Co. case differed from the newspaper case in that the latter contract "specified an hourly rate, and not less than time and a half for overtime, with a guaranty of a fixed weekly sum, and required the employer to pay more than the weekly guaranty where the hours worked at the contract rate exceeded that sum."

In Justice Reed's decision, to which Justice Roberts was the lone dissenter, the court also held that an employe was entitled under the act to damages equal to the overtime payments to which he was found entitled.

The federal wage-hour administration contended that the overtime compensation should be based on an hourly wage arrived at by dividing the weekly salary by the number of hours worked, regardless of how much the weekly salary exceeded the amount required by the act.

The transportation company asserted that it had paid a weekly wage large enough to provide the minimum wage required for regular time and time and one-half for all overtime worked. Under the law, time and one-half must be paid after 40 hours each week, based on "the regular rate" of employment.

"When employer and employes," Justice Byrnes said in the Dallas, Tex., case, "have agreed upon an arrangement which has proven mutually satisfactory we should not upset it and approve an inflexible and artifical interpretation of the act which finds no support in its text and which as a practical matter eliminates the possibility of steady income to employes with irregular hours."

Definition Lacking

Justice Byrnes said congress had failed to provide a definition of "regular rate" of pay under the wage hour act and that the company was within its rights in negotiating a regular hourly rate with its employes.

"Presumably congress refrained from attempting such a definition," Justice Byrnes said, "because the employment relationships to which the act would apply were so various and unpredictable.

"And that which it was unwise for congress to do, this court should not do.

"Where the question is as close as this one, it is well to follow the congressional lead and to afford the fullest possible scope to agreements among the individuals who are actually affected.

"This policy is based upon a common sense recognition of the special problems confronting employer and employe and in businesses where the work hours fluctuate from week to week and from day to day.

"Many such employes value the security of a regular weekly income. They want to operate on a family budget, to make commitments for payments on homes and automobiles and insurance."

"Congress has said nothing to prevent this desirable objective. This court should not."

Justice Reed, in the dissenting opinion, said that since the wage hour act provides that "overtime pay must at least equal time and a half the regular rate, employers and employes may not be permitted to contract in avoidance of the statutory requirements."

Joining in Reed's dissent were Justices Black, Douglas and Murphy.

The average production record in the larger Hollywood studios is three minutes of finished film in an eight hour day.

direction. Perhaps we will be forgiven if we claim we are about midway to our objective.

The opening stage of the battle was a heavy raid on Midway, tiny but strong defense outpost 1149 miles northwest of Hawaii.

This took place early Thursday morning by Japanese carrier-based planes. Army, navy and marine corps planes repulsed the raid, taking heavy toll of the attackers. American forces quickly took control of the air despite the fact the invading force had at least four aircraft carriers One battleship and one aircraft carrier were heavily damaged and other Japanese warships hit

On Friday, the repulsed invaders were placed on the defensive and sought safety in retreat, their four or more battleships being ineffective against American air superiority.

American casualties, as announced so far, have been light.

WOMEN TAKE PLACE AT WHEEL OF TRUCKS

Learn To Drive Monsters of the Highway.

By The Associated Press

MILFORD, O., June 8—That little blond in overalls you saw in the cab of a semi-trailer truck wasn't the driver's girl friend—she was one of a corps of truckerettes piloting monsters of the road for the duration.

Women who three months ago considered a truck only an annoying highway obstacle have become expert in handling anything from a small delivery "job" to a big six-wheeler.

Training of 26 volunteers began after Homer H. Ernest, defense council director in this village on the Hamilton-Clermont county line, was unable to find men truckers for the "Salvage for Victory Program."

Women volunteers were required to be excellent drivers of passenger cars, even tempered and not nervous.

They were assigned first to smaller trucks, then to a long wheelbase four-speed lumber vehicle. Next came instruction in maneuvering coal trucks and handling the hydraulic hoists installed on them.

Finally the women learned to drive semi-trailers, school buses and furniture vans.

The highway patrol, meanwhile, taught the girls regulations governing trucks in Ohio and experts gave short courses in the care of brakes and clutches and lubrication.

VITAMINIZED FLOUR SOON TO BE GENERAL

Product Soon To Be 100 Per Cent Enriched.

By The Associated Press

CHICAGO, June 8—Within a few weeks the nation is expected to be almost 100 per cent on a wartime body and nerve building diet of enriched, vitamin packed flour and bakery foods, milling trade authorities said today.

They said that what started out in January, 1941, as a campaign to encourage use of the newly developed health-giving flour had turned into a complete victory. Many mills now are making only enriched flour for the so-called family trade and soon it will be difficult for the American consumer to buy anything else.

Furthermore, they said, the nation's flour consumption was expanded because of wartime conditions, and it probably would be the largest in years. No rationing of bread or use of substitutes would be necessary, however, for domestic wheat supplies were by far the largest on record—equal to two years' normal requirements, they added.

Government health authorities encouraged manufacture of enriched flour, explaining that a population receiving a diet fully adequate in vitamins, minerals and other nutritive essentials was better able to stand the stress of war.

Gas Rationing Would Cost Ohio $29,000,000

COLUMBUS, O., June 8—Gasoline rationing in Ohio would cut passenger car consumption 43.3 per cent and would decrease federal, state and local government income $29,000,000 annually, the Ohio highway planning survey estimates.

On the basis of rationing now in effect in the east the federal government would lose $7,930,000; the state general fund $5,288,000; the state highway department $8,922,000; counties and townships $3,966,000 and municipalities $2,974,000.

U. S. WHEAT PROGRAM RECEIVES ACID TEST

Big Harvest Will Show Whether Prices Will Hold.

By The Associated Press

CHICAGO, June 8—The government's power to keep domestic wheat prices up is receiving the acid test now.

Having helped to raise prices the past few years through successive increases in loan rates on wheat as each new crop is harvested, the government's ever-normal granary program today was being subjected to pressure associated with a new season and a surplus bigger than ever.

Since before the war began in 1939 domestic wheat prices have been kept above the world market by the expedient of holding grain in storage through payment of high loans. Now the domestic price around $1.13 for July delivery, is almost 40 cents higher than Canadian wheat, 50 cents higher than Australian and almost 60 cents better than Argentine.

Holding back of grain from season to season has resulted in accumulation of the United States' biggest carryover on record, two-thirds of which is the ever-normal granary. Another surplus crop is about to be harvested, of which possibly a third or more will have to be held off the market to prevent price collapse.

Even though the government is prepared to loan as much as $1.32 a bushel for No. 2 grades of wheat in Chicago, this high loan rate has not kept the market for "free" wheat from declining recently. However, this decline has largely followed the pattern of prices in recent years when the loan rate has been a major market factor

Wheat in Chicago hit a five-year peak of above $1.30 in January this year. Since then, however, the price has sagged, nearing $1.15, which was the lowest since last October. Last season the loan rate at Chicago was $1.15. Wheat sold as high as $1.03½ in May, reacted, got up to $1.07 in July but did not reach the Chicago loan rate until September. Before the end of the year prices were up to near $1.30.

Boy's Body Removed from Shaft of Mine

By The Associated Press

CANTON, O., June 8—A state mine rescue crew today recovered the body of 14-year-old Paul Davis from an 80-foot ventilating shaft at the A. F. Deibel & Sons Co. mine near Waynesburg.

The boy plunged into the pit after descending a ladder 20 feet. With his father, Clarence Davis, and a 12-year old brother, Richard, he was in quest of water. The well on the family's nearby farm had gone dry.

The elder Davis said Paul, preceding him and Richard into the inactive mine, cried that he was slipping before losing his grip on the ladder. Fireman Howard Lover of Canton, wearing an oxygen mask, was overcome while attempting to tie a rope around Paul's body. Harold Wilson, mine inspector, halted further efforts pending the state squad's arrival uncoubtedly influenced by realization of the increasing strength of United Nations air power—that thousands of planes being turned out in American factories will some day be a decisive factor in smashing Japan as well as Germany.

If the Hawaiian islands could have been taken, the American airforce would have been pushed back to bases on the United States mainland, and part of the growing threat to Japan eliminated.

The Japanese apparently hoped to blast Midway's defenses, then occupy the island, and with airplanes clearing the way, move step by step against Oahu itself.

They also probably hoped to damage seriously American sea forces, especially aircraft carriers.

Their attacks on Dutch Harbor seem to have been mainly an effort at diverting American forces.

In any case, the Japanese were not only outfought, but outguessed and outmaneuvered. They again showed their inability to modify a long conceived plan in face of unexpected developments—in this case the strong opposition they met.

Halifax Feels Hitler Knows He Can't Win

By The Associated Press

SYRACUSE, N. Y., June 8—"I feel pretty sure that Hitler himself knows that he cannot now win the war, and certainly that he can't win it unless he wins this year," Lord Halifax declared today.

The British ambassador to the United States pointed to the allies' "real and crushing" air superiority, the Russian campaign, and progress in combating enemy U-boats as grounds for United Nations' confidence and "misgivings in the axis camp." Halifax spoke at Syracuse university's seventy-first commencement exercises.

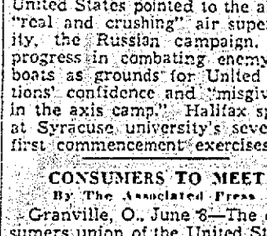
What You Buy With WAR BONDS

Ships of the Destroyer type comprise the bulk of our fighting ships in the American Navy. Their average displacement is about 1800 tons, and they are fast, powerful, and hard hitting. They have been particularly effective in convoy duty and gave a good account of themselves in the Coral Sea engagement. They cost approximately $3,600,000 each.



Every Navy shipyard is turning out Destroyers in record time. They are essential for our expanding Navy. Purchase of extra and more War Bonds will assure adequate production of these vital units for the Navy. Buy every pay day. If everybody invests at least the amount of his income in War Bonds we can do the job. U. S. Treasury Department

Posts for Air Corps Ground Officers Filled

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, June 8— The army air forces gave notice today that for the time being no more men need apply for commissions as ground officers to fill administrative posts.

Offices in some key cities have been "swamped," officials said, with requests for administrative appointments. Applications already filed will be studied and men possessing the necessary qualifications will be interviewed and called as needed.

The air forces stressed the suspension did not apply to those desiring to become aviation cadets.

ROBERT RINGER GETS COMMISSION IN ARMY

One of 171 at O. S. U. Made Lieutenants.

Robert Ringer, son of Mrs. P. W. Ringer of the Prospect road was one of 171 Ohio State university student commissioned as a second lieutenant in the United States army in Army day exercises May 27 on the campus, according to a report received today.

Lieutenant Ringer will be graduated from the university a week from today and on June 20 will report to the field artillery at Fort Bragg, N. C.

Each commission was presented personally by Governor John W. Bricker.

The commissions were awarded to seniors who satisfactorily completed four years of military study at the university and summer study and training at Fort Knox, Ky. The Army day exercises, in addition to the presentations of commissions, included demonstrations of bridge building by the engineers, riding drill by the horse-drawn artillery, occupation of position by a battery of 75 mm. guns and a parade of the 3,500 military students at the university.

Lieutenant Ringer is a graduate of Harding High school.

USO Brings Home Touch To Life of U. S. Soldiers

By BILL BONI
Wide World Military Editor

NEW YORK, June 8—Strictly speaking, this is not a military story. Yet it is a story of important war work, work that perhaps provides a clue to the man-for-man superiority of U. S. soldiers, sailors and marines over their axis opposite numbers.

Individuality, the ability to call your soul your own, and still be a hell-for-leather fighting man, has a lot to do with that. Discipline and regimentation are essential factors in any successful war effort.

Yet the soldier, sailor or marine, to produce peak performance all the way, needs a place where he can forget to salute, where he can resume his nickname and discard the feeling he's just end man in a column of fours.

Therefore, this story:

The sentry guarding the isolated strip of Pacific beach front is alert and tense. That truck rolling along towards him has no business here, he's sure. He brings his Garand rifle to the "ready," barks out an authoritative "Halt!"

USO Finds Them

At that moment the truck's wheels hit a patch of loose sand. It slews sideways. The rising moon picks out the foot-high letters emblazoned on its side: "USO."

"Hey, gang, come a-runnin'," yells the delighted sentry to his mates of the anti-aircraft battery. "The USO has found us, even in this forsaken hole. . . ."

It costs 50 cents to have a single shirt laundered in Alaska, $3 for overnight accommodation in even the lowest-priced hotel. That's a tough tariff on coast guard pay. The local USO solved the problem for the boys in blue by importing a washing machine from Seattle, which now is in almost constant operation. In the same clubhouse is a dormitory, where service men get clean, comfortable beds for 25 cents.

A troop train is steaming past, headed perhaps for an overseas embarkation point. Its next stop, for only a 10-minute halt, is the home town of one of the soldiers aboard. He hasn't been there for 15 years, hasn't seen his parents in that time.

Meets His Folks

The soldier approached his commanding officer, says "I'd give anything to see them." The officer wires ahead to the USO lounge in the town's railway station. As the train pulls in, father and mother are there to greet their son.

"And the officer told me later," says Randall J. Leboeuf Jr., chairman of USO's transit service committee, "that lad was a far better soldier from then on . . ."

This is the USO, which Lieut. Gen. Brehon Somervell, head of the army's services of supply, has called the "people's service to the fighting men."

Committees in 8,000 communities are campaigning now to raise a war fund of $32,000,000 to maintain these "homes away from home" in Maine and California, Newfoundland and the Canal Zone, Florida and Hawaii.

Has Big Program

That sounds like a lot of money. But the USO, supplying outside our army and navy establishments what the government and Red Cross provide on the inside, now has more than 700 clubhouses in 45 of the 48 states and on overseas stations.

Furnishes recreational facilities—libraries, game rooms, showers, to name just a few—used by more than 3,000,000 men a month in the United States alone.

Stages camp shows that will play to 3,500,000 service men a year.

Has five mobile service clubs, stocked with everything from the latest movies to sewing kits, to reach isolated stations on the Atlantic coast, and 10 more, the gift of Edsel Ford, to tour the west coast.

Takes care of an average of 5,000 men a day with its troops-in-transit service in railway stations and bus terminals in 36 cities.

Thus it combines under one general administration the work done heretofore by its six component agencies—the Y. M. C. A. and Y. W. C. A., the National Catholic Community service, the Salvation Army, the Jewish Welfare Board and the National Travelers Aid Association.

Tiffin and Findlay won league contests yesterday.

Galion received its sixth straight loss, bowing 3-1 to Findlay. Tiffin edged the Fostoria Red Flares 2-1 on the six-hit hurling of Fink. The Red Flares did not score until the seventh inning when Ponzurick rifled a single to right field to score Outfielder Gee.

In a meeting of league umpires yesterday at Tiffin with League President Charles LeClone it was voted to purchase regular umpire uniforms.

STOCK RALLY WANES TODAY

Midway Victory Fails To Incite Any General Celebration in Market.

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK, June 8—Rallying power waned in today's stock market notwithstanding the best war news since the start of the conflict.

Leaders exhibited mild upward tendencies, but plus signs soon were reduced in many cases. Dealings slowed appreciably. Small gains were well distributed. Numerous issues were unchanged or off a shade.

Wall Street obviously was disappointed that there was no real celebration over the big United States air-naval victory in the mid-Pacific. It was suggested however, that the Chinese and Russian pictures still were cloudy and that last week's upswing, best since January, may have inspired speculative and investment caution.

Among stocks Coca-Cola got up several points on a few sales. American Telephone lacked on a point. Moderately improved most of the time were Chrysler, Woolworth, International Harvester and U. S. Gypsum.

Off at intervals were U. S. Steel, Bethlehem, Goodrich, Boeing, Sears Roebuck, Anaconda and Dow Chemical.

GRAIN TRIES RALLY BUT EFFORT FAILS

By The Associated Press

CHICAGO, June 8 — Grain prices tried to advance today, wheat and rye gaining more than a cent at one stage, but the market turned downward after numerous new highs were posted a few cases before the close.

Rye tumbled almost 3 cents from early highs to show losses of more than a cent at one stage, reaching new lows from the year. Traders said prospect of a big crop and diversion of the distilling industry to industrial alcohol manufacture, with corn and wheat the principal grains to be used, depressed rye.

Price buying was associated with Washington reports that a bill will be introduced in the senate to provide mandatory loans at full parity, instead of 85 per cent of parity, on basic agricultural commodities.

Indians Split with Yankees; Reds Move Into Third Place on Twin W

Ernie Bonham Drops First Decision As Al Smith Hurls Relief Role.

By The Associated Press

Nearly everybody in the major leagues, it seems is working on a "streak" of some kind these days, but the ones who hope to keep them intact will take a tip from the New York Yankees and steer clear of Al Smith, the Cleveland southpaw.

Ernie Bonham is the latest to tangle with Lefty Al.

Sporting a record of eight straight victories and topping the pitching ranks of both leagues, undefeated Ernie went after number nine against the Indians yesterday before 71,010 customers.

But Smith had ideas of his own.

Joe Heving lasted less than an inning against the American league leaders, who drove him to cover with three hits and as many runs. Then Smith came along and checked the Yanks with a single run the rest of the way while his mates tore into Bonham and tied the score. Smith lashed out a hit for the run that won the game, 5-1.

Last season it was Smith who stopped Joe DiMaggio after the Yankee Clipper had hit safely in 56 consecutive games, although on that occasion he had a collaborator in the late innings in Jim Bagby.

Cleveland's success was short-lived yesterday, however, for the Yanks splattered home runs all over the place in the second game, winning 13-1 behind Spud Chandler's five-hit pitching and dumping the Indians into fourth place as the Boston Red Sox moved into third.

The Detroit Tigers held on to second place in the American league, ten games behind the Yanks, by dividing a double bill with the Washington Senators. Detroit took the first game, 6-4, but the Senators won 8-0 in the afterpiece.

The Boston Red Sox tripped the Chicago White Sox twice, winning both games by a score of 3-2 and scoring the winning runs in the final frames.

Continuing their flirt with the first division, the St. Louis Browns knocked off the Philadelphia Athletics in both games, 5-2 and 7-1.

In the National league, the Cincinnati Reds took a pair from the tumbling Boston Braves and moved into third place, vacated by the New York Giants losers of a twin bill to the St. Louis Cardinals.

Four unearned runs helped the Reds win their first game, 6-2, but it took a ninth-inning homer by Ray Lamanno to decide the second, 3-2.

Howard Pollet pitched the Cards to a 4-1 triumph over the Giants in their opener and Mort Cooper made it unanimous with a four-hit 2-0 shutout.

The Brooklyn Dodgers clung to their seven game lead over the Cards by winning a pair from the Chicago Cubs, 8-1 and 4-3.

The Pittsburgh Pirates, who replaced the Cubs in sixth place, came from behind twice to nip the Philadelphia Phils, 5-4 in ten innings, and 8-6 in a game held to seven innings by the Sunday law.

Long Shoot-Off Decides State's Trapshoot Title

By The Associated Press

COLUMBUS, O., June 8—Karl Maust, husky Columbus traveling salesman, broke 375 targets in a row yesterday—200 in the regular event and 175 in a shoot-off—to retain his state singles and all-around trapshoot championships at the 56th annual Ohio tournament.

The women's title went to petite Mrs. George Peters of Springfield, winner of the 1938 women's grand American handicap at Vandalia, who cracked 191 of 200 in the regular event and then broke 70 to 75 in a shoot-off to defeat Miss Florence Mc of Cincinnati, the defending queen.

Maust and Joe Hiestand, the Hillsboro farmer and holder of the 16-yard long run record of 1179, were the only shooters in the field of 220 able to break the entire 200, and the two hot shots then tangled in the longest shoot-off in state tourney history.

Mrs. Peters is the daughter of Charley (Sparrow) Young, winner of the 1926 Grand American Handicap.

C. J. Mos, father of Miss Mos, kept one title in the family by breaking 199 to 200 to capture the professional laurels, while the junior title, for shooters under 18 went to Ralph Leist Jr., of Pataskala with 183 of 200.

Hiestand won the over-all championship, consisting of the doubles, handicaps, class and singles championship races with 588 of 600, two ahead of Maust, while the tow tied for the all-around, which does not include the class championship event, with 388 of 400, Maust winning the shoot-off.

KANSAS CITY BLUES BEAT FLOCK TWICE

Minneapolis Ends Indianapolis' 7-Game Streak.

By The Associated Press

The Kansas City Blues have increased their lead in the American association race to three and a half games over second-place Milwaukee, while, in presenting the other extreme, St. Paul has dropped into the cellar with a thud echoing from a 13-game losing streak.

The Blues yesterday burned up Columbus, 3-0 and 1-0, on a couple of remarkable pitching chores by Charles Wensloff and Allen Gettel.

The Louisville Colonels dropped St. Paul, 5-4, in 17 innings, longest association game of the season, and took the nightcap, 3-2, in eight innings.

Manager Gabby Hartnett's Indianapolis team lost to Minneapolis to end a seven game winning string. The Millers took the opener, 3-2, but the Tribe bounced back to win the second 9-0.

Snatches of Sports

Wide World Sports Columnist
By HUGH FULLERTON, JR.

NEW YORK, June 8—Suggestion we'd like to see tried: Charles O'Connor, Cincinnati Times-Star golf expert, comes up with an idea for an open military golf tournament this summer, which undoubtedly would net a nice bit of change for the relief societies or other charity. It would only require about a week's furlough for the boys in uniform, he points out, and the service roster includes such crack amateurs as Bud Ward, Johnny Fischer, Pat Abbott, Willie Turnesa, Dick Chapman, Tommy Tailer and Charley Yates and professionals Sammy Snead, Jim Turnesa, Vic Chezzi, Porky Oliver and a flock of others.

Initial Error—When the Red Sox made a trip to Washington recently, Thomas William Oscar (Lefty) Judd turned his luggage over to a porter while he went to buy a newspaper—losing track of the prospective tip, the red cap approached Manager Joe Cronin and asked, "Where is that two jay man?" ..."You mean double X, don't you?" asked Cronin, thinking of Jimmy Foxx..."No," insisted the red cap, "I mean two jay; here it is right on the bag."... Sure enough, the bag was marked T.W.O.J.

Today's Guest Star—Sgt. Ralph Eckhart, signal corps message, Ft. Monmouth, N. J.: "As a full time employe of Louis and company, George Nicholson collects 25 smackeroos daily for his hit-and-miss routine. This is considerable cabbage to collect over a period of time, and averages higher than a few hits at the box office. Personally, however, we'd rather drive a truck for a living than get hit by one."

WEEK-END SPORTS IN BRIEF

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Washington Senators traded Steve Sundra, pitcher, and Mike Chartak, outfield rookie, to St. Louis Browns for Roy Cullenbine, outfielder, and relief pitcher Bill Trotter.

NEW YORK—Shut Out, Mrs. Payne Whitney's Kentucky Derby victory, won Belmont Stakes by traveling 1 mile and a half in 2:29 1/5. Alsab, weary winner of Preakness Stakes and Withers Mile, second. Total of $207,000 donated to war relief by Belmont and Jamaica parks.

PELHAM MANOR, N. Y.—Greg Rice established American three-mile record of 14 minutes as New York Athletic club won annual Metropolitan A.A.U. track title. Don Burnham, Dartmouth sophomore, defeated Leslie MacMitchell by inches in 14:14.6 mile.

MILWAUKEE—Wisconsin won Central Collegiate track title but Harold Stickel of Pittsburgh university captured the 100 and 220-yard dashes and the 220-yard low hurdles.

ROCHESTER, N. Y.—Barney Ewell, Penn State sprinter, surpassed world record in rarely run 200-yard dash with clocking of :18.9, clipping one-tenth-second of Charley Paddock's old standard.

CHICAGO—Ohio State and Wisconsin split two-game series over week-end and ended Big Ten baseball season sharing third place. Championship was divided between Michigan and Iowa. Ohio State defeated the Badgers 5-2 in first game, but lost second, 8-4.

Meanwhile, the Hawks prepared for a busy week. Four games in all including one game with a service team and three league affairs with Findlay are on this week's bill of fare.

The Hawks are slated to meet Findlay in a mid-week game at Findlay Wednesday night. The Findlay club comes here Sunday for a two-game engagement.

Gutwein Cards 211 As Hale America Qualifier.

By The Associated Press

CINCINNATI, June 8 — Bob Gutwein of Cincinnati shot a two-under par 211 at Kenwood Country club course over the week-end to top eight sectional qualifiers for the Hale America open golf tournament finals at Chicago next week.

Gutwein, youthful pro at nearby Wyoming and local P. G. A. champ, had a par 71 Saturday and two 70's Sunday to finish 3 stroke behind Byron Nelson of Toledo, former National open champion. Nelson, exempt from qualifying, had a 210 exhibition score of 69-71-70 for the 54 holes.

Reggie Myles of Columbia Station, O., capped a 74 in the first round with two 69's to tie Tony Penna of Dayton for second with 212. Courtney Noe of Louisville, Ky., was fourth with 213.

Bobby Servis of Dayton, former Ohio amateur champion, had the low amateur card of 215, which tied for fifth with Johnny Malutic, Bedford O., pro whose four-under-par 67 in the final 18 was

Cincinnati's Ray Lamanno Among Top Rookie Stars

By DILLON GRAHAM
Wide World Sports Writer

NEW YORK — Now that the major league races have passed the quarter-pole, let's have a call-over on the rookie performers.

The Dodgers, with batting champion Pete Reiser, and the Yankees, with flashy shortstop Phil Rizzuto, boasted the rookie-of-the-year [illegible] the two major leagues last year. And this year almost every club has a fairly strong candidate for top honors.

Early in June, Catcher Ray Lamanno of the Reds in the National league and Scorston— Johnny Pesky of the Red Sox and First Baseman Les Fleming of the Indians in the American were pacing the 93 first-year men at bat. Young Ed Head of the Dodgers led the hurlers.

Ed Head

On the basis of the first two months' play, here is my correspondent's idea of an all-star major league rookie team:

First base—Les Fleming, Cleveland.

Second Base—Lon Merullo Chicago Cubs.

Shortstop—Johnny Pesky, Boston Red Sox.

Third Base—Nanny Fernandez, Boston Braves.

Outfield—Oris Hockett, Cleveland.

Outfield—Stan Musial, St. Louis Cards.

Outfield — Willard Marshall New York Giants.

Catcher—Ray Lamanno, Cincinnati.

Pitcher—Ed Head, Brooklyn.

Pitcher—Early Wynn, Washington.

Numerous Short Stops

Merullo is a shortstop but is moved to the other side of the keystone sack because there are no rookie second basemen, although Washington is playing a shortstop, Bobby Repass, there temporarily. There might be an argument at shortstop, for both Pesky and Vernon Stephens of the Browns are fine fielders and while Pesky is outhitting Stephens, the latter has driven in more runs. The same situation applies at third base where Lou Blan of the A's has knocked in more counters than Fernandez who boasts the bigger batting average.

Here are the American league standouts:

First Base—Fleming.
Second Base—Repass.
Shortstop—Pesky.
Third Base—Blair.
Outfield—Hockett.
Outfield—Ned Harris, Detroit.
Outfield—Glen McQuillen, St. Louis.
Catcher—Otto Denning, Cleveland.
Pitcher—Early Wynn, Washington.
Pitcher—Hal White, Detroit.

And this looks like the best National league roundup:

First Base—Ray Sanders, St. Louis.
Second Base—Mickey Witek, New York.
Shortstop—Merullo
Third Base—Fernander
Outfield—Musial
Outfield—Marshall.
Outfield—Tommy Holmes, Boston.
Catcher—Lamanno.
Pitcher—Head.
Pitcher—Lou Tost, Boston.

Merullo is played at his regular stortstop post and Mickey Witek, who played a few games for the Giants last year and is not exactly a newcomer, takes over at second.

Golfer Knocked Out by Billiard Ball

NEW YORK, June 8—The Hale America National Open golf tourney, being played to provide funds for the navy relief society and the USO, also has produced a golfer knocked out by a billiard ball.

Charles Lind, Big Seven Conference champion, led the qualifiers from the Denver district although made unconscious for 15 minutes when struck above the right eye by a wandering cue ball while watching a locker-room pool game during the lunch hour.

Twelve of the 13 district tourneys that determine the make-up of the final field at Chicago's Ridgemoor club June 18 to 21 have been completed and the Los Angeles test gets under way today.

Bob Jones competed in the district meet at Atlanta. The old master trimmed a dozen years off his swing and five strokes off par to lead the field with 67-71-67—205, six strokes less than his nearest Dixie rival.

Marion's Youngest Graduates Get Kindergarten Diplomas

Marion's youngest "graduating class" received diplomas in exercises yesterday afternoon at the Forest Glenn cathedral home.

The "seniors" were 19 six-year-olds of the Mary Maxwell Kindergarten on Cummins avenue and they were taking part in the second annual exercises, only program of the kind in the city. The decorations included their class flower, babybreath.

The four "juniors" and two "sophomores," the 4 and 5-year-olds also appeared in gowns and mortar boards, the boys in black and the girls in white, and they received certificates of promotion.

The program opened with "The Kindergarten Prayer" followed by the salute to the flag. The 25 boys and girls gave four recitations, "Welcome," "The Swing," "Dandelion Yellow as Gold" and "My Mother's Face," and repeated the class motto, "Be True."

Give Class Yell

The concluding number was the class yell, "1942, best you ever saw, Kindergarten, Kinder... Garten, Rah! Rah! Rah!" From the inner tots it came out "Tindergarten, Tindergarten, Wah! Wah! Wah!" to the amusement of the large group of parents and friends.

The "seniors" received diplomas rolled and tied in their colors of blue and gold and the "juniors" and "sophomores" received certificates of promotion carrying the 1942 class colors. Each received a gift from the teacher.

Names of the children were drawn by a visitor to select the president of the alumni association and to determine who should have the flag used in the exercises. Ronald Meddles' name was drawn to head the alumni group and Eleanor Ann Pryce received the flag.

Greetings were sent by Mrs. G. E. Waddell, former head of the kindergarten, and a congratulatory telegram was received from Mr. and Mrs. J. Walter Maxwell, son and daughter-in-law of Mrs. Maxwell.

The visitors joined the children in singing "God Bless America," accompanied at the piano by Mrs. Carter M. Patton.

After the program the children filed onto the lawn where they were targets of parents and friends with motion picture and still cameras.

In welcoming the parents and friends Mrs. Maxwell expressed gratitude to the parents for their kindnesses during the kindergarten year, and said: "Who can say that this occasion does not mark a very important event in the lives of these little ones? My hope is that as we have guided the little fingers to make their first crude little letters we have been able to inculcate the principles of truth and fair play. My farewell is 'Goodbye, good luck and God bless you'."

Officers of all the classes and, among the "seniors," those named most popular and most likely to succeed, were chosen by drawing names. Eight of the "graduates" were cited for conduct and excellence in work.

Officers of Group

The "senior" officers and groups, making up the entire class, follow:

Officers—Billy Arbogast, president; Danny Artz, vice president; Donald Robinson, secretary, Natalie Newell, treasurer.

Conduct—Carol Bachman, Donald Wilhelm, Tommy Yeager and Maryann Sansotta.

Excellence in work—Georgia Hildebrandt, Mary Ellen Krigbaum, Jean Lawson and Jimmy Seckel.

Most popular—Jerry Lee Gillis, Betty Jones, Leslie Irey and Ronald Coen.

Most likely to succeed—Ronald Meddles, Tommy Thompson and Jack McNamara.

All of the "juniors" were officers, as follows: Patricia Logue, president; Eleanor Pryce, vice president; Jimmy Crossland, secretary; Tommy Coss, treasurer. The two "sophomores" divided officer-honors as follows: Bobby Tharpe, president, and Dotty Lou Cottrell, secretary-treasurer.

JAPS LOSE 4 PLANES TO ONE FOR AMERICA

Gen. Arnold Tells Iowa Grads Day of Reckoning Near.

By The Associated Press

MOUNT PLEASANT, Ia., June 8—Lieut. Gen. H. H. Arnold, commander of the United States army air force, declared here today that "for every one of our planes shot down, the Japs have lost four."

In an address prepared for the 100th annual commencement of Iowa Wesleyan college, at which he received an honorary doctor of laws decree, the general said "the day of reckoning is not as far off as some people think.

"I am telling Tokyo that we have more Colin Kellys and Butch O'Hares and Jimmy Doolittles on the way. This is just the dawn of a day of wrath."

The general, who recently returned from Europe, said he "did not fly to London to go on the defensive."

"Raids like those on Cologne and Essen were just starters to those which are to follow where U. S. and RAF fighters and bombers ride the skies as a team."

The speaker said "the axis knows that the next six months will spell victory or defeat for their forces. For the axis it is now or never."

"The flying fortress has no peer in its field today," Arnold asserted, adding "our B-25 medium bombers can go farther, faster and carry more bombs than the best ships of our enemies."

He declared the United States has "the best young pilots in the world and they are proving their superiority in combat in the air."

By the end of this year," the general said, the army air force will have "over 60,000 officers and close to a million men. By June of next year, if it becomes necessary, we will double that."

gined craft capable of carrying tremendous bomb loads—participated in the Saturday night assault upon Emden, one of the main bases for German submarines harassing the Atlantic shipping lanes.

One target was the Nordenseewerk submarine factory and another was the Dortmund-Ems canal, through which iron ore from Scandinavia has been flowing into the reich.

There was only light German aerial activity over Britain during the night. Bombing was confined to the southwest coast where a few casualties and damage to residences were reported.

There has been much evidence, including official declarations, of eventual American participation with Britain in both the aerial offensive and, eventually, in a second European land front while Germany still is tied up with Russia in the east.

The Russian-German conflict centered today on Sevastopol, Crimean naval base, which has fought off German siege for seven months. With the Germans controlling the Kerch peninsula and other Crimean territory, Sevastopol is the Russian's last stronghold there.

For three days it has withstood intense land and air assault and exacted from the enemy a heavy cost for his efforts to reduce it.

The Russians reported yesterday a one-week score in planes downed of 528 German craft as against 151 Russian losses.

Marion Moose Group Initiated at Bucyrus

Approximately 70 members of Marion Lodge No. 889 L. O. O. Moose joined with the Bucyrus lodge for initiation of a large class of candidates yesterday afternoon in Bucyrus.

"Certainly if we had known exactly when and where and in what force the enemy intended to strike, we might perhaps have afforded some diversions from our vital areas of protection.

"But as the results will prove, I believe, we shall have nothing to apologize for in the present action. I cannot go into details of our own forces that were engaged, or ready to be engaged. The Japanese probably do not exactly know them but they have cause to know plenty."

12,326 JOIN SERVICE IN MASS RADIO CEREMONY

Swell Ranks of Navy, Marines and Coast Guard.

By The Associated Press

The nation's sea forces were stronger today by 12,326 fighting-mad young Americans bent on avenging Pearl Harbor.

For a few moments yesterday the youths were clock watchers; today they're sailors, marines and coast guardsmen.

In mass enlistments from coast to coast they were sworn in simultaneously in a radio ceremony timed to the minute six months after the Japanese attack of last Dec. 7.

Their hands were raised just when the hands of clocks pointed to 2:25 p. m. for the occasion which Navy Secretary Frank Knox called symbolic of the nation's determination to restore peace to the world "by administering just punishment to those who have brutally and wilfully transgressed all the laws of humanity."

Two hundred and thirty-two Ohioans joined the "avengers of Pearl Harbor" in mass enlistments yesterday.

Add Weight to LaFollette Effort for Increase.

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, June 8—Strong Republican support for a $50 a month minimum pay raise in the armed forces added weight today to an effort by Senator La Follette (Prog.-Wis.) to upset a joint senate-house conference committee's compromise on $46.

Although Senator Austin (R-Vt.), assistant minority leader, was delegated to submit the joint committee's report, there were indications that most of his Republican colleagues would vote against the compromise.

Senator Capper (R-Kas.) said he thought the $50 minimum previously approved by the house was more satisfactory, adding that he believed many on his side of the aisle felt the same way.

LaFollette, who had threatened to seek discharge of the conference committee, said that in the light of the group's agreement on the $46 figure he would move to recommit the bill to conference with instructions for the senate members to accept the house provision.

"My flag is nailed to the mast for $50 and it will take a majority of the senate to tear it down," LaFollette told reporters.

The house, waiting for the senate to act first on the pay bill, prepared to take up a measure providing government grants for war the maintenance of the families of men in the armed forces in the four lowest ranks who receive $138 or less monthly pay.

pledge is a good barometer of the purchases in Marion county monthly."

Although the total monthly pledge is far below the $200,000 quota set for the county, it is felt many persons were conservative in their pledges and that the quota will be met, he said.

"Many who pledged," Mr. Grigsby said, "made their pledge conservative so as to be able to meet it at all times, despite business fluctuations. They reported, in many instances, that they would probably buy twice the amount of the pledge whenever possible."

Mr. Grigsby said no goal had been set in the home-pledge drive, but that the pledge will serve as a criterion for the total monthly purchase of war bonds and stamps in the county. "The drive served to bring the importance of buying bonds to the attention of the individual and to stimulate sales," he said.

Chairman of the Kiwanis club's citizenship committee, in charge of the campaign, was Dr. Harry Bell of the Central Christian church.

the union would continue the strike until a union victory is obtained.

He added that the pay, wage dispute was still unsettled. He admitted that the company had offered a general pay increase recently and said the increase amounted from $.18 to $1.30 per week additional for each employe.

He explained that the union's request for vacations with pay, for all employes was also met with half-hearted efforts on the part of the hotel management. The management, he said, proposed to give as little as two days vacation to an employe who had been with the firm for more than two years.

Hotel Officials' Comment

Hotel officials said they had no comment to make today on these complaints.

J. Malcolm Strelitz, attorney for the hotel management and also a member of the board of directors, said it was the wish of the board to settle the dispute. He added that the board had conceded the strikers everything but a union shop. He said no negotiating between the union and management had been taken since the strike started Saturday morning.

Nazi Newsmen Write Only What Goebbels Tells Them

They Get Their Orders Every Day from Berlin Ministry of Propaganda.

[Some after Pearl Harbor dispatch from Germany Louis P. Lochner, chief of the Berlin bureau of the Associated Press of Wide World, described the German press as a "case of public service for the state."]

By LOUIS P. LOCHNER

NEW YORK, June 8 (Wide World)—The Nazi editor or reporter writes as he is told to write. If he doesn't, he is, at best, blotted out from the lists of his profession. More likely he is headed for a concentration camp.

He is told in the minutest detail what he may write, what he may not touch upon, what emphasis he must place upon a given item, how he is to comment upon it, when to harp on a certain theme and when to drop it.

He's An Automaton

Nothing is left to chance, and very little to imagination.

Here's the set-up:

Every morning the press officials of the various ministries filter into the Goebbels ministry of propaganda and public enlightenment such items of news as their ministers of their department chief approves. This does not mean, necessarily, that the item will be released for publication. It may happen that the experts in the propaganda ministry consider the time inauspicious, in which case the ministry, in question, too, is barred from releasing it.

Or it may be that even the ministry, in relaying it to the propaganda department, desired merely that it be communicated to the German newsmen for their information but not for publication.

At 10 o'clock every morning, Goebbels' handsomen foregather to learn what they may say to the press, what information should be withheld, what commentary should be offered, which items must be carried as privileged matter (and thus made obligatory upon the papers to carry), what evasive replies should be told in response to questions antic...pated.

Every official in the ministry thus knows what he is to say during the ensuing hours. So do the corresponding officials in the various ministries, who usually attend this powwow or at least are advised of its proceedings. Ring up whom you will after this conference, and you will get practically the same stock answer. Only very rarely is a man to be found who will even bother to tell the same story in his own words.

All Get Same Orders

No sooner has this morning conference taken place, than radio speakers of the ministry get busy on an inside-office broadcast to the 40-odd sub-offices of the propaganda ministry scattered throughout the reich. The press officials in these branches thus receive identical instructions.

When, therefore, the editor of the Frankfurter Zeitung at Frankfurt inquires concerning the news and how to handle it, the local propaganda representative will give him exactly the same information that, a few minutes later, the Berlin correspondent for his paper will receive.

For, at 11 a. m. the Berlin press, including representatives of all important provincial papers, is received at the propaganda ministry and told, "you may write this; you must not say that."

The men selected for this conference are a picked lot. They are under oath not to reveal what is said during these conferences. But during my 20-years' stay in Germany I got to know many German editors personally. From them I know how they often blush at what is expected of them. Many feel very unhappy and wish they might get out of the meshes of the ministry.

They Follow Orders

A few years ago we had the case of one such correspondent who felt so humiliated at what was happening in these daily conferences that he secretly took notes (the correspondents must not take notes while the "interpretations" are handed out to them), which he then turned over to the representative of a British daily. Unfortunately this colleague, bent upon scoring a scoop, published textually a number of instructions and "verbotens," given during a certain week. The propaganda ministry immediately invited two gestapo officers to sit unobtrusively in the conference and to observe who was taking copious notes. The man was discovered, then shadowed for several days and finally arrested as he was about to slip a manuscript to a representative of the British newsman in a billiard hall. He was sent up for life. Since that time there have been few transgressions.

Almost until the very end of my Berlin activity, I was able nevertheless to obtain access to the daily instructions.

On many items of news Adolf Hitler himself reserves the right to determine what commentary must be given.

After the German editors had taken their instructions, the foreign press was received daily, as most of us could not be regimented (our number, however, became smaller and smaller as Germany occupied one country after another and as representatives of the few remaining neutral countries became more and more afraid), naturally the tone toward us was a cajoling rather than a mandatory one.

Sometimes They Forget

Even then on several occasions the official would forget whom he had before him and read from his manuscript, "the press will write as follows." Blushingly, he would quickly change over to "Gentlemen of the foreign press, the German viewpoint on this—or —that situation is—"

Before the advent of Nazism, the German press was one of the freest in the world. It now is one of the most minutely regimented. This is true especially since the outbreak of the war, it was true, however, long before September, 1939. It had made for uniformity and rapidness that is nothing short of appalling.

In the pre-1933 days, two German members of our staff spent about three hours every afternoon just making the press that might be of interest to the American staff. In addition, two of us spent an hour each going more hastily over one well-reputed German daily.

Since the advent of the Hitler regime, one German in one hour can finish practically all the Berlin and the most important provincial papers. And after having attended the daily conference for the foreign press, we already know what the German press would say editorially.

Foot Strain

THE FOOT IS made up of a number of small bones arranged by Nature very ingeniously to allow for the movement of the foot in many different directions. When one considers the many twists and turns and attitudes that the foot has to assume in walking, standing, running a sewing machine or driving an automobile, it becomes no wonder that the mechanism should break down.

The result of any such breakdown is pain, either in the foot or in the calf muscles or in the knee on prolonged standing and walking, or sometimes general fatigue and irritability without any special localization in the foot. All of this used to be called "flat foot" and is now generally called foot strain.

The nature of the difficulty used to be ascribed to a breakdown in the arches of the bones of the foot, but with the introduction of the term "foot strain," more emphasis is put on the muscles of the foreleg. These large muscle send tendons down to the toes and around the arch of the foot and it is their tone and action which keeps the arches of the bones of the feet in place.

More often than anything else foot strain is due to weakness and tiring of these muscles. To show how common this foot strain is, in a group of probationer nurses there was an average of one nurse a week obliged to be off duty on account of foot strain. Probationer nurses, rather suddenly change from habits where they can rest a good part of the time, to long hours with much standing.

Following this line of thought out, orthopedic surgeons believe that exercises to develop the muscles of the foreleg are far more valuable in correcting foot strain than special shoes, arch supports or any of the old-fashioned cumbersome appliances. these exercises must be carried out persistently. The arch supports may give temporary relief while the exercises are being done to strengthen the muscles.

This new conception of flat foot invalidates many of our conceptions, because painful feet may occur either in flat feet, moderately arched feet or highly arched feet. In fact, many candidates for the city police and fire departments who appear to have flat feet have really very strong feet and use them perfectly. When many of these men stand, they certainly have flat feet, but when they walk or run their weight-bearing lines are perfect.

This idea also has some bearing on the question of modern shoes and high heels which commonly come in for a berating from hygienists, but the question of whether a shoe is harmful or not depends on the kind of foot and the kind of foreleg muscle that a wearer has. A prominent orthopedic surgeon says about the various attempts to legislate the heights of heels that "one may as well try to legislate window glass for spectacles, because no two feet are alike."

According to some insurance companies, growing pains in children are due to rheumatism. My friend, the orthopedic surgeon, says that 999 out of 1,000 cases are due to foot strain. By strengthening the muscles of the forelegs, it is possible to do away with the necessity of artificial support of the feet in a great many cases.

Madre Asks Bickett Whether There Is a Copy of Cryptogram, But He Declines To Answer the Question.

"NO, THEY WON'T," Jask answered promptly. "Fortunately—I'll always believe in Fate after this—the page which blew away from Redfield's pile of papers, and which Mary so cleverly salvaged, has the principal items of the key to my whole work.

"Furthermore," he went on, "without my recovery of this particular page all my work would have been useless, for I would not dare to trust my memory of the key calculations."

He stopped and I put a question which my curiosity could restrain no longer.

"What good are those cryptogram pages to the gangsters? Do you suppose they are in touch with anyone who can translate them?"

"I don't think so," he answered. "I think they counted on getting hold of Professor Diswell and torturing him until he should consent to translate the cryptograms.

"Fate certainly had a hand in your arrival," he went on. "Diswell would have died before he gave them any information.

"Of course, if the cryptogram had dealt with something of interest or profit only to myself," he added, "I should not have hesitated a moment. I should have spilled everything, to save Diswell.

"But this thing is of tremendous importance to the defense of the nation, if I can only get in touch while the proper people and have a chance to make the experiments I wish.

"I thought Diswell's place was safe, and I had done some preliminary spade work there, after I was able to sit up. You see, I spent the first two weeks there flat on my back, under the old fellow's efficient nursing. And see what I brought on the poor old chap! Now I know only that I must shove off again before I endanger anyone else dear to me."

I knew better than to contradict him.

"I remember your old dislike of making carbons or copies of anything," I told him, smiling. "But is there no copy anywhere of those vital cryptograms?"

He hesitated before replying.

"I think I would better not answer that question," he said. "What you do not know—"

"Do you think?" I interrupted hotly, "that any pressure could induce me to give up such a secret?"

"Rein it in, red-head," he adjured me, using words often on his lips in my teen age which used to make me furiously angry.

But his next speech was tenderly apologetic.

"Dear girl," he said, "don't I know that you would be torn into inch pieces before you would reveal any secret you thought you ought to keep? But I don't choose that you should be subjected to any such decision, so—I'm not going to answer that question."

He came over and put his hand on my shoulder.

"I'm sorry not to be more tractable," he said, "but I simply must go my own way. First I must go back to your father and Professor Diswell. But please believe, Margaret, that I never can forget the new hope about Katharine which you have given me, to say nothing of your other help.

PERPLEXING as well as conflicting auguries are found in this day's astrological forecast. While there are several excellent prospects for a progressive and prosperous state of affairs, yet there may be dangers of impulsive, rash, tempestuous acts of a ruthless or drastic suddenness.

Those whose birthday it is may find themselves deep in a year in which their progress and good fortune depend upon individual restraints, moderation and control, with a shrewd and capable manipulation of excellent prospects for constructive enterprise with sound and enduring fulfillments. There may be suddenly arising situations calling for decisive or drastic action, but such should be pursued with temperate and wise methods, not impest, turbulence and confusion.

A child born on this day should have excellent abilities and initiative for enduring success and good fortune.
